Hitler's Followers Announce Two-Day 'Truce' as Army Eyes Uprising Threat.

DISORDERS CHEER BERLIN

Chamberlain's Plan to 'Deal' With Mussolini Draws Fresh Cabinet Outbursts.

(By Associated Press)

Austria, the present test tube for the Hitlerian formula of a new Germanic union in Europe, seethed ominously today but an alert Austrian army capped it before it could bubble over into a Nazi march on Vienna.

Prominent Nazis in Berlin eagerly watched the stirrings at Graz, stronghold of Austrian Nazis, and found in the threatened uprising support for their declaration last week that Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg was "finished."

Troops Stop March.

Swift reinforcement of the Graz garrison, the rumble of 16 tanks, the roar of warplanes and the quick emplacement of artillery and machine-guns, nipped yesterday's plan for a march on Austrian capital.

The Nazis announced a two-day armistice with the Schuschnigg government.

Under today's calm lay sharp danger to the peace of Europe.

Other fuel for Europe's domestic and international fires of discord included:

1. Fresh outbursts in Britain against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of bargaining with Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Bolstered by a week-end of demonstrations and speeches calling for a general election, opposition members of the House of Commons confronted Chamberlain with new questions, challenging his dream of a British-Italian-French-German accord to assure the peace.

2. French Premier Camille Chautemps' struggle to maintain his government in the face of senate opposition to legislation to ease France's threat of a strike wave that might engulf the nation.

Rejects Compromise.

The Chamber of Deputies Labor committee today rejected a senate compromise clause which would authorize upward adjustment of wages every six months in event living costs rose 10 per cent. The chamber and its committee insisted on five per cent.

Board Off For Newark Seeking Relief Solution

Richland county commissioners and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe planned to go to Newark this afternoon to study the Licking county relief set-up in an attempt to find an answer to Richland county's relief problem.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the relief administration in Licking county had been one of the most thorough and economical in the state and that some of the methods used there may be adopted here.

Faced with a $35,000 debt since Jan. 1 and with little money with which to pay it, Richland officials said immediate action is needed to rescue the county from a "relief crisis."

The county today had received $23,000 from the state in public utility excise tax funds, but almost the entire amount will be used to retire old relief bonds, Auditor Wolfe said.

The county owes some $70,000 for relief administered several years ago and has been retiring the debt with funds allocated by the state.

Martinelli Blames Collapse On Crab Meat He Doesn't Like.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Giovanni Martinelli, the tenor, irked by a light diet imposed by physicians after he was overcome by acute indigestion during a performance at the Metropolitan opera house Saturday, attributed his predicament today to "politeness."

Martinelli blamed his illness on crab meat, a dish he does not ordinarily eat, but which he said he had partaken at a dinner party out of courtesy.

Dr. Seyss-Inquart

This is a new photo of Dr. Arthur Seyss-Inquart, minister of the interior in the cabinet of Austria's chancellor, Kurt von Schuschnigg. 2 RENAMED TO ELECTION BOARD

Bricker and Williams, Both of Shelby, Get New Terms on County Body.

Fred L. Bricker and George Williams, both of Shelby, were re-appointed to the Richland county board of elections today by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy.

The Richland countians were among 176 board members appointed in the 88 counties in the state to serve until March 1, 1942. A Republican and a Democrat were named in each county.

The re-appointment of both Bricker and Williams was expected since they were endorsed by their respective county executive committees several weeks ago.

Williams, a Republican, has served two four-year terms on the election board and will begin his third term tomorrow. He received the endorsement of the G. O. P. leaders in the county.

Bricker, who begins his second term Tuesday, is a Democrat and

'White Flame' Killer Wants to Be 'Forgotten Man.'

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Free at last after being convicted of the "white flame of jealousy" slaying of his wife and best friend, Paul A. Wright today wanted to be "the world's most forgotten man.'"

After finding him guilty of manslaughter for killing Evelyn Wright and John B. Kimmel when he surprised them in an unseemly embrace last Nov. 9, the same jury on Feb. 16 virtually freed Wright by holding he was mentally irresponsible at the time.

Wright was ordered released at a psychopathic hearing after a period of observation. Following his release yesterday he said:

"If it is humanly possible the world will never again hear of Paul Wright."

Federal Agents Question Woman, 26, Arrested On Board German Ship.

HUNT FOR 3 OTHERS

Mitchell Air Field Under Guard As Probers Push Inquiry Of 'Ring.'

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—A red-haired hairdresser of the North German Lloyd liner Europa emerged today as the key figure in the federal government's drive to smash a spy ring accused of furnishing U. S. army information to a foreign power.

G-men resumed their policy of secrecy after announcing the arrest of two soldiers—one a deserter—and Johanna Hofmann, the 26-year-old hairdresser, but it was learned that they were searching for two, and possibly three, more members of the ring.

A federal grand jury will investigate the activities of Miss Hofmann, Erich Glaser, 28, a private stationed at Mitchell field, N. Y., and Guenther Gustave Rumrich, 27, a former sergeant and deserter.

Letters Offered $1,000.

Investigators, engaged in the most intensive spy hunt since the World war, regarded Miss Hofmann as the most important captive. She was arrested when the Europa docked Thursday. She possessed letters offering $1,000 for plans of the navy's new aircraft carriers, Enterprise and Yorktown. She had also a code and the key to it.

There was nothing to indicate that Rumrich and Glaser had known each other, or anything about each other, until Miss Hofmann was arrested. Rumrich implicated her, and it was believed that she implicated Glaser.

A prominent physician was reported to have been questioned, and to have admitted knowing of the ring's activities. Vetterli refused to confirm or deny the reports, but it was learned that his agents sought two or three men who may be higherups in the ring.

Officers at Mitchell Field, the bulwark of New York City's air defense, were said to be most anxious that the inquiry be in-

Mitchell Field Head Son of Mansfielders

Col. Thomas J. Hanley, commanding officer of Mitchell Field, L. I., who ordered a heavy guard stationed around the big U. S. army air base yesterday following the arrest of three accused spies, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hanley, 171 West First street.

Although he is a native of Coshocton and never lived in Mansfield, Col. Hanley has visited his parents here frequently. He had planned to come to Mansfield this week but because of the present disturbance, is not expected until later, his father said. Col. Hanley is one of the highest ranking officers in the army air corps.

Doughnuts Dunked In Cold Lake as Truck Runs Away

Bakery Vehicle Travels Half Block Without Driver And All But Disappears In Water At North Park.

Dozens of doughnuts, designed for good old-fashioned dunking, received their pre-destined dunking Saturday afternoon, but in the cold waters of North Lake park instead of Sunday morning coffee.

The doughnuts and other baked goods, were in a truck owned by the Park Avenue Bakery, 44 Park avenue west, when the vehicle broke away from the curbing on Helen avenue and proceeded driverless to the lake a half block away.

Only Top Visible.

William Yahraus, the driver, said he had been making a call with some baked goods, and just came out of a house when he saw the vehicle plunge into the lake and settle beneath the surface with only the top visible.

Several other persons saw the truck land in the water too—but didn't know that the machine was driverless. Within a few minutes several fire trucks, an ambulance, a police squad car and a wrecking truck were on hand.

When Yahraus made it clear to Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and police that he was the driver of the truck and that it was a load of baked goods that was in the lake, the officers, firemen and ambulance retired from the scene and the wrecking crew went to work.

The truck was in the garage drying out today. Daniel Schneider, proprietor of the bakery, said the baked goods lost were worth $25.

ASKS FOR DATA

Duffy Calls For Transcript of Committee Testimony.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy today called upon the special senate investigating committee for a complete transcript of testimony adduced at its numerous hearings.

In asking Chairman Ralph Seidner (D) Youngstown, for the testimony, the attorney general did not disclose what use he intends to make of it but it was understood he wanted to look into evidence concerning payments by the state for paving material.

"I assume that recommendations growing out of the hearings which have been held before your committee will not be made until the testimony is finished," Duffy wrote Seidner. "I would greatly appreciate having this testimony at the earliest possible moment."

LOST STRATEGY

Dog's Barking; Trip Through Cold Leads To Man's Arrest.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Clarence Bell decided upon a strategic move when his Sunday morning slumber was broken by the barking of a dog across the alley.

Instead of throwing his bedroom slippers at the dog he put them on, wrapped himself in a bathrobe and brought the animal to his warm room.

The barking stopped, but the dog's owner, Fred Pahlke, soon appeared with Policeman Michael Kerwin and had Bell charged with stealing his pet.

DETROIT — (AP) — Two young girls were burned to death and their sister was severely injured last night when fire swept the second floor flat of the Irvin E. Kraft family.

The dead were Geraldine Kraft, 13, and her sister, Lillian, 5. Another sister, Kathryn, 8, was placed under an oxygen tent in a hospital and not expected to live.

COUNTY CUTS TRAFFIC TOLL 60 PER CENT

Two Dead First Two Months of 1938 as Compared With Five Last Year.

U. S. RECORD BETTER, TOO

8 Ohioans Lose Lives Over Week-End; Loudonville Man Dies of Injuries.

Despite ice-coated, treacherous highways, Richland county escaped without a major traffic accident over the week-end and completed the first two months of 1938 with a traffic toll of two dead as compared with five by March 1 last year, a reduction of 60 per cent.

The county's drop in automobile fatalities so far this year is in line with figures for other sections of the state and nation which have shown a marked decline from the 1937 mark.

The county's two 1938 victims —Joseph H. Uhlich, 70, Mansfield, and A. E. Shafer, 75, Bellville—died when struck by trains. Mr. Uhlich was killed in Mansfield Jan. 7 and Mr. Shafer lost his life Feb. 14 at Bellville.

County authorities attribute the reduced traffic toll to less motor travel and the fact that bad road conditions have caused motorists to drive with more care.

At least eight Ohioans, including a Loudonville man, died in traffic mishaps over the past week-end.

Dies in Kentucky.

The Loudonville victim was John Dana, 45, manager of the bus sales division of the Flexible company, who died of injuries suffered Friday night in an accident at Russellville, Ky.

Dana was fatally hurt when his automobile skidded on an icy road and turned over, fracturing a rib which punctured a lung. Following the accident he obtained another car and drove to Bowling Green where he died Saturday night in a hospital.

His body was returned to the home of his mother in Athens, O., for funeral services and burial. A resident of Loudonville for 10 years, Mr. Dana is survived by his wife, Susan, and his mother. He was a World war veteran and a member of the American Legion at Loudonville.

Two persons were killed when an automobile skidded and crashed into a tree along the

PARTING NIP

Mercury Dips to 9; Will March Enter as Lion or Lamb?

February took a parting nip at Mansfield today as its farewell for another year, and the forecast left considerable doubt as to whether March would come in like the traditional lion or the lamb.

The month's lowest temperature was recorded early this morning, when the mercury dropped to 9 above, according to Observer Enos Sprunger. The lowest previous mark, 13 above, occurred on the 21st. Sprunger also reported 3½ inches of snow for Saturday and Sunday.

At noon today, despite a bright sun, the temperature had risen only to 13.

The forecast for tomorrow is "cloudy and warmer," but it would have to get a lot warmer pretty fast to make most Mansfielders consider the entry of March lamb-like.

FALLS UNDER TRAIN

MARION —(INS)— John C. Hamner, 56, a railroad brakeman, was crushed to death when he fell under a moving train in the Erie railroad yards.

Pups Get 'Mother' By Air

SHERBORN, Mass. —(INS)—Five hungry Cocker Spaniel puppies at the home of Mrs. Harriet B. Owen here were thriving today under the care of a foster mother, rushed here from Washington by airplane.

Born six days ago, the puppies were failing because the mother was unable to feed them. So at a cost of $175, Mrs. Owen hired a Boston pilot to fetch a foster mother from a Washington, D. C. kennel.

"Patsy," the substitute mother, took the whole business in stride. She adopted the now contented puppies as though they were her very own.

PERSHING TAKES LIQUID FOOD AS HE SHOWS GAIN

Remains Conscious Longer Periods as He Wages Grim Fight Against Death.

(By Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz.—The first bulletin from the bedside of Gen. John J. Pershing today said he had taken fluids through the mouth for the first time in four days.

His physicians last night had said they would become "really hopeful" of the ultimate recovery of the chief of the armies if he could overcome his inability to swallow.

"Although General Pershing had a very restless night he seemed somewhat better this morning and took fluids by the mouth," said the bulletin given out by Dr. Roland Davison.

"He has been conscious much longer periods. His body temperature has returned to almost normal level and the heart is still competent. No oxygen has been administered for 36 hours."

In reply to questions, Dr. Davison said the general's kidneys were "functioning a little now and that helped to relieve the uremic poisoning condition."

'No Funeral Train.'

"Any person other than General Pershing, with his physique, would have been dead three days ago," asserted Dr. Davison, who as the World war commander's private physician.

"He won't be going back on a funeral train at all," said Sgt. C. C. Shaeffer, the general's orderly for 17 years. "He'll get over this. But he'll never be a well man."

It was a week ago today that General Pershing, who had been reported suffering from rheumatism, suffered a relapse and was transferred from his hotel quarters to the sanitorium.

The physicians insisted then there was nothing to be alarmed over except a heart complication they felt would react favorably to treatment.

Thursday night the 77-year-old war chief of the American armies lapsed into a coma.

Failure of his kidneys to function brought on uremic poisoning in "considerable magnitude," the doctors said.

Stan Laurel, Russian Dancer Quiet Talk Of Divorce.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—(INS)—Stan Laurel and Illiana, a Russian singer, were starting all over again as man and wife in the hope their new marriage would turn out better than the first.

Yesterday they appeared again before Justice of the Peace Ed Winn in Yuma and asked him to tie the knot all over again.

"This is to end all talk of a separation and divorce," Stan felt called upon to explain.

INQUIRY PUTS JITTERY HOUSE ON 'HOT SPOT'

Davey's Ire Feared In Lower Chamber, Senate Believed to Favor Extension.

GOVERNOR TALKS TONIGHT

Puts Final Touches on Radio Speech Replying to 'Graft' Charges of Bradley.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Eighteen leading Democratic representatives discussed with Gov. Martin L. Davey at a private meeting last night the situation created by a state graft-hunting investigation and the imminent adjournment of the legislature, it was learned authoritatively today. Information was that no conclusions were reached at the conference.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The legislature came back to the capital today to make one of the most difficult decisions ever to face an Ohio lawmaking body on the virtual eve of an election campaign.

It must decide whether to extend the session by reconsidering the joint resolution setting today as the date for sine die adjournment and thus incur the wrath of the mighty administration machine, or to string along with Governor Davey and risk retaliation at the polls.

Fund Bill Delayed.

Of greater importance to government activities at present was the supplemental appropriation bill, but it had been shifted into the background as the legislators studied their chances of making a wise selection in the matter of sine die adjournment.

The lawmakers relegated the supplemental budget to the background, saying that the bill would be worked out without difficulty. What they are interested in is the seriousness of the senate investigating committee's charges against the administration, and, indirectly, against the integrity of the lawmakers themselves.

There seemed little doubt as to which way the senate would swing unless the administration brought extreme pressure to bear, but the representatives were "on the spot." The house, heretofore controlled by the governor, was in a state of jitters as rumors continually popped up that resolutions calling for an extension of the session and others calling for impeachment of the governor would be introduced.

More 'Deals' to Come.

James Metzenbaum, tireless counsel for the committee, said he had reams of evidence yet to be presented, and pointed to testimony which he said had proven that the hot mix group had made "deals" with members the night before state highway department lettings which resulted in only one bid on some jobs and identical bids on others.

Meanwhile, the governor put the last touches on a 15-minute statewide radio address tonight

ARMY LIMIT OUT

Nazis Abolish Age Regulation For Military Officers.

BERLIN — (U.P.) — Germany today abolished the age limit for military service of retired, regular and reserve officers under a decree issued by the supreme command of the armed forces.

As a result of the decree retired officers are liable to military service as long as they fulfill medical requirements regardless of age. The age limit for military service generally has been 45 years.

The new order is applicable to officers who retired from the imperial army and the reichswehr before the Nazis took over control, as well as officers who have gone on the retirement list since that time.

Some such move had been expected since Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, in his speech to the reichstag on Feb. 20, intimated that the German army would be strengthened.

WINS RESPITE

Mass Killer of Five Granted Death Chair Stay.

BELLEFONTE, Pa.—(AP)—Old Martin Sullivan, Duquesne's mass slayer, began a holiday from death today while his attorney sought to have him declared insane.

Scheduled to die a few minutes past midnight this morning in the electric chair for the door-to-door slaying of five neighbors, the former patrolman won a respite until the week of March 14.

Proposes Condemnation To Get Land For P. O. Addition

The joint treasury-post office committee of the Federal government today recommended condemnation of a piece of property adjoining the Mansfield postoffice to obtain the land for an addition to the postoffice, according to Associated Press dispatches from Washington.

The property involved is the 40-foot strip of land east of the postoffice, on West Fourth street, owned by the Mansfield Mutual Fire Insurance company which the government seeks as a site for an addition to the present postoffice building to relieve crowded conditions that now exists there.

Postmaster Herman E. Hamberger revealed today that about a month ago, he received a proposal form from Washington, which he turned over to the insurance company on which it was to submit the price it wanted for its property. He said he returned the form to Washington after it had been filled out, but said he was not at liberty to disclose the price the company had asked.

J. M. Cook, secretary and treasurer of the insurance company, also declined to make known the amount the company asked, but when informed today of the committee's action, said that was the first information he had received on the transaction since the company's proposal was sent to Washington.

"The offer made to the government was tentative, and therefore I do not care to state what it was," Cook said. "We hope to hear from the government next."

Council Still Split, Decides Fate of Sewage Plan Tomorrow

With city council split into two camps and a third of its membership still "on the fence", fate of Mayor Claude M. Hunter's plan to continue the present operating set-up at the sewage disposal plant hung in the balance today.

The legislation—renewal of the ordinance that expires March 8 creating the sewage plant positions—another authorizing the employment of a technical supervisor and the third calling for a transfer of $1,500 to pay the salary of the technical aid for one year, comes up for final action at a meeting of council tomorrow night.

The measures were given a first and second reading in the last 10 days. Under parliamentary procedure no vote is taken until an ordinance is read a third time.

A poll of council members showed today that three, all Republicans, are standing firm in their belief that an experienced engineer should be hired to operate the plant instead of continuing with an inexperienced operator.

Three other members indicated they would "go along" with the mayor while the remaining three have either declined to commit themselves or could not be reached.

The state health department has recommended the employment of an experienced engineer at the plant. The state has agreed how-

Family Has Embarrassing Manners

By VIRGINIA LEE

"MY DEAR MISS LEE: I'm 23, and I happen to be in the same boat as L. E. G. (whose letter was in the column recently.) She has my sympathy. Added to her home environment (her father and brothers were unkind to her and her mother) I can't bring fellows home unless they are serious and going to marry me. What is a girl supposed to tell a fellow if he asks such a girl out? Does she have to meet him in the street and then leave him there, in order to avoid the third degree questions and embarrassment she would put him to with the folk at home?

"If a girl goes out with a fellow for the first time she doesn't know beforehand whether she cares enough for him to marry him. I ask you, how could a fellow who asks her out for the first time be expected to answer those ridiculous questions? Some parents seem to think we are still in the year 1400.

"Although I have the same circumstances as L. E. G., I have a different slant on the men folk. I personally think that there are very few duplications of our home difficulties (you'd be surprised). I would like the same type of man as L. E. G.—a man who is a gentleman at all times. Where do you think we shall find such a man? Where could I seek one if I don't go to college or business and don't go out much?

"Thank you for writing this column as I enjoy reading it very much, and I hope you continue to write it. DEPRESSED.

Instead of being an uncommon problem, yours is quite a common one, Depressed, especially where there is a large family. Everyone is interested in sister's new boy friend, and they all make embarrassingly frank remarks. They wonder if he is THE one for sis, and the poor fellow is either frightened away, or meets her on the corner.

If you can't discipline your family by telling them that that sort of thing isn't done any more; that you don't know the boy and don't know whether you like him any more than as a casual acquaintance or not, maybe you can refer to the matter laughingly to the boy himself. Tell him, "you know how big families are. They are all interested in a new boy friend such as yourself, so don't let them get you down if they ask what your intentions are. Tell them we two know and the rest of you will when the right time comes."

That will stall them off, maybe, save embarrassment and give you and the boy a chance to get acquainted, and at least remain friends.

As you are 23 years old, could you not go out and take a position? It would be excellent experience, as I believe every person should know how to earn his or her own living, and it would also give the chance you crave for meeting some young men and women.

SOMEONE BLUE loves a good-looking young chap who says he loves her, but who never has any time to give her. True, he works in the daytime and plays in an orchestra every evening, but when she calls him and leaves a message, he never calls her up.

There is another young man who also says he loves the girl, and he tries hard to make her forget the first youth. He wants her to marry him, and she wonders whether she should.

I wouldn't marry this very nice young chap when you are in love with the other, Blue. That would be playing a pretty mean trick on him. He certainly doesn't want a wife who is always thinking of another man. But as the first boy isn't interested in you—even if he tries to make you think he is—why I'd do my very best to forget him if I were you.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

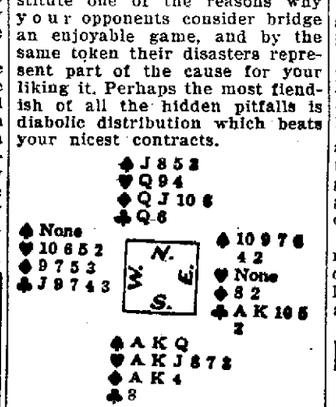
"The Authority on Authorities"

DIABOLIC DISTRIBUTION

No matter how good your bidding or your play on a particular hand, some demon may rise up to smite you. The unexpected catastrophes that befall you constitute one of the reasons why your opponents consider bridge an enjoyable game, and by the same token their disasters represent part of the cause for your liking it. Perhaps the most fiendish of all the hidden pitfalls is diabolic distribution which beats your nicest contracts.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

The holder of the South cards on this deal, in a rubber game was meeting with nothing but reverses during the evening but he finally was able to score a game when he picked up these cards. He gleefully told himself that this was one rubber that could not possibly get away from him.

He opened the bidding with 2-Hearts, to which his partner responded with 2-No Trumps. After 3-Hearts by South, North went to four and South to 6-Hearts.

Words cannot express his feelings when he saw the opening trick of the club 3 won by East with the K, and a spade returned which West ruffed. Having already lost 108 points, he decided the fates were against him that particular night, and who can blame him?

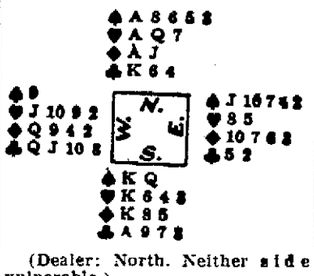
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 6-No Trumps after the lead of the club Q?

To stir paint thoroughly use a small paddle. A good paddle may be made by cutting off enough of the leg of a clothspin to fit over the edge of the can when not in use.

Fish can be scaled and fowls plucked more quickly if dipped first into boiling water.

Adviser Tells Men How To Retain Hair

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

TODAY'S column will be devoted exclusively to the Forgotten Man. Our conscience has been pricking us ever since we had some rather awkward requests from several men friends. They said that there were plenty of places where women could go to get information about improving their personal appearances, but what was a poor fellow to do?

Well, we hope you like it, and we hope that some wives and sweethearts will find our jaunt into a man's world helpful to their nearest and dearest.

The majority of you men who worry, either secretly or openly about your looks, fret about losing hair. So we thought that a few hints to prevent falling hair and to thicken thinning hair would be in order. The first step toward having any sort of a crowning glory is to get over a lot of your masculine habits that are even discouraging to a set of hair that has started out with the best intentions in the world.

Don't wet your hair every time you comb it. And don't drown it every time you take a shower. Try to get over the idea that hair has to be washed two or three times every two weeks. For most normal heads, once every three weeks, is enough. When selecting a hat see that the headband is not so snug that it makes a line on your forehead. If that happens it's too tight and impedes circulation. This is tough on the scalp.

Brush Your Hair.

Now for some constructive suggestions. Get a pair of military brushes that have really good stiff bristles. Then give your hair a thorough brushing at least twice a day. (I know, but take the time). This will stimulate the circulation of the blood and the little follicles will be supplied with the nourishment that is so necessary. Never clamp the brushes together after using them. Put them down bristles upward so they can air. Have the brushes washed at least once a week, and you will find that the daily brushing will keep your hair quite clean and you will not need numerous shampoos.

Have a scalp massage as often as possible, and don't let the barber put on a lotion with too strong an alcoholic content. The head just doesn't like it and it is terribly drying to the natural oils. If it is necessary to use something to make your hair lie down and stay neat-looking pick a tonic or lotion that contains ingredients that encourage the growth of hair. There are lots of them on the market.

This routine doesn't really take much time and it will certainly do wonders. And there's nothing like a good head of hair to make a man look as young as he feels.

HOROSCOPE

JUDGING BY the very interesting planetary configurations, this should be an active and profitable day, with excellent returns for industry, sound judgment and sagacity. Some hasty good news probably will call for change, travel or other forms of adventure and chance. Friendship may have an important part in the general trend of events, with romance likewise increasing happiness and prosperity.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and interesting year, with good news resulting in change, travel, new ventures and associations. Industry and good judgment will be rewarded suitably, and old matters should flourish. Friendship and roamnce should lend themselves to the happy and progressive state of affairs.

A child born on this day may be lively, quick, brilliant and adventurous. It should have sound judgment and be successful and happy.

The last of March and the first of April in normal weather is a safe time to plant seeds in a cold frame.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WITH AN EFFORT of will power, I caught back a gasp of dismayed astonishment at Philip Veritzens casual dismissal of my announcement that Mary was also ready to thank him for our luxurious quarters and for the elaborate welcome of rare flowers which he had provided for us.

I did not believe for a moment his excuse that he had an appointment and must hurry away. His concealed dislike of his young daughter-in-law was so strong, I guessed, that he did not wish to hear her voice, even when it was expressing thanks for his munificence. But I resumed speaking.

"Its a very simple matter," I began, "distinctly not worthy the time of so busy a man as you are. I would not think of troubling you with so small a thing, but the hotel manager here appears to think it necessary that I get your authority for something so trivial that I am ashamed to bother you with it."

As I talked I wrote a few words on the pad beneath my table and extended it to Mary, focusing the attention of my ears the while to Mr. Veritzen's answer.

"Ask others to come in," I had written. "Mr. Milner must hear this."

No Request "Trivial."

Mary nodded and walked to the door while I listened attentively to Mr. Veritzen's voice.

"My dear Child!" he reproved me in his most paternal fashion. "You must know that I could not designate any request of yours as trivial. Please tell me at once what it is that you wish."

I had an audience now. Miss Whitlock and Mr. Milner had come back into the room.

"It's only this," I said. "The apartment here is ideal for two people. Mary and I will never be in each other's way, even if we have to be working at different projects at the very same time."

"That is what I had planned," he interposed hastily. "But surely—"

"Unfortunately, Mary is not in very good shape," I said, conscious that I was not stretching the truth in this particular. "She is terribly nervous, and her uncle and I have decided that she needs more constant attention than I can give her, absorbed in our other work as I shall be. Therefore, her uncle, has insisted upon engaging a nurse for a few weeks who will give her the professional care and supervision which I cannot furnish."

"You really think that is necessary?" Mr. Veritzen queried sharply.

"Neither Mary's uncle nor I would have insisted upon a nurse if we had not thought so. Of course, we are meeting the extra expense."

"That is absurd," Mr. Veritzen said. "If she is needed"—his tone said that he doubted it—"I will, of course, take care of the financial end. But—"

"There is only one difficulty," I interrupted again, "and that is one which you can remove with a word. We naturally wish Miss Whitlock to have rooms adjacent to ours if possible; at any rate, upon the same floor. Mr. Milner, the hotel manager, says that you have leased all the rooms upon this floor to insure us privacy, but, of course, permitting Miss Whitlock to occupy the one-room suite next to ours would hardly interfere with that generous plan of yours. I tried to explain that to Mr. Milner, but he appears to feel that he must have your formal authority to permit Miss Whilock to occupy the rooms. I was so sure that you would give it that I told him I would get you on the telephone at once. He is right here if you would like to speak to him."

What Is Role Of Guest of Honor at Tea?

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My cousin is giving a tea in my honor as I am going to be married soon. Am I supposed to stand receiving with her all the time, or would it be better for me to mingle with the guests? At this tea my cousin is wearing a long, rather semi-evening type of dress without hat or gloves. Am I supposed to go without a hat, too? The reason I ask this question is that the party will be at her house and I do not live in the house. You wrote one time that friends of the hostess who pour tea should never wear hats, and I wondered if this also applied to the guest of honor.

Answer: Under the circumstances, I think it would be better that you go without a hat, and while people are arriving receive with your cousin. Or, at least if you do not stand beside her, you should be near enough to join her when other new arrivals ar announced so that she can introduce them to you. If you were pouring tea as a deputy hostess, you would probably then wear a hat. At least going without a hat at such a time would be unusual in New York as well as in many other cities. If you were a celebrity, a semi-public person, and some one were giving a formal tea for you, you would then wear a hat. In other words, I think it is the relationship of the hostess to you which makes the wearing of a hat out of place.

Dear Mrs. Post: My mother is giving a lunch party of about forty people and at this time she intends to officially announce my engagement. Some of the guests will be her own friends and the rest of my own most intimate girl friends. How should the invitations be written?

Answer: The invitation should either be written in the third person on a partially engraved form or else on the first page of a double sheet of note paper. Your mother would better not write "In honor of my daughter, Mary," on the invitation because this would certainly tell every one the news before the announcement is made. Your visiting card would be enclosed in the envelope of her invitation to all YOUR friends. This meaning merely that you second her invitation and will be present. Of course, if she chooses to make the party informal and write on her visiting card, then your name could be written under hers and that would mean that you are giving the luncheon together. A semi-engraved form would, however, be best of all.

GAIN SUPPORT IN DEMAND FOR WARSHIP DATA

Lawmakers Want to Know If $250,000 Plane Can Destroy $80,000,000 Battleship.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Chairman David I. Walsh, D., Mass., of the senate naval affairs committee, today joined a congressional bloc that demands "definite knowledge" whether a $250,000 bombing plane can destroy an $80,000,000 battleship.

Such information—presumably available as a result of the navy's secret tests in mock sea battles—will be demanded before the senate naval affairs committee acts on President Roosevelt's billion-dollar program for construction of warships, Walsh said.

Walsh stepped into the congressional conflict over the navy program for the first time as the house naval affairs committee, now considering the bigger navy bill, called Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore airplane manufacturer, to testify on the value of bombing planes as a defense weapon.

Martin was represented by Lester P. Barlow, Connecticut inventor of the aerial bomb, in a letter to the committee as believing that development of aerial attack method is imminent and will render battleships practically obsolete. Barlow claimed that Martin has plans "well along" for a super-bombing plane which can carry five 2,000-pound "mines" about 8,000 miles. He said the mines could destroy any battleship afloat.

Japs to Be Ignored.

The dispute over a defense program continued during the weekend with the following developments:

1. A high administration official indicated that the United States will ignore overtures from Japan to halt the international naval building race.

2. Rep. Ralph O. Brewster, R., Me., member of the house naval affairs committee, charged that the proposed naval program "cannot be construed as other than indicating an American intention to engage in power diplomacy under the guise of promoting world peace and security."

3. Rep. Ed V. Izac, D., Cal., speaking on the same radio program with Brewster, said that it "might be treason" not to follow the naval course charted by the president and naval department officials.

4. Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., of the house naval affairs committee and sponsor of the billion dollar naval bill, said in a dispatch written for the United Press that "the building program . . . will continue better to promote peace."

Despite opposition to new battleship construction, congressional leaders expected to secure passage of the bill by an overwhelming majority in the house. Senate leaders were less certain after a bloc of senators representing all political factions had raised the question whether it was advisable to put huge sums into battleships in view of the advancement of aerial bombardment.

A third man, identified by Secret Service Agent R. G. Pfeffer as another former federal prisoner, was held for questioning.

A Farmer's Diary

YESTERDAY, when I went to town, my seven-year-old boy reminded me of my promise to get him a new ball. I bought everything on my list, and had almost reached home again, when I remembered—so I hastily turned, went back, purchased the ball and placed it in the pocket of the car.

As I entered the home garage, instead of the lusty shout, "Daddy's here!" all was quiet. I saw a red stocking cap bob in and out around the far corner. When he knew that I saw him, he came running.

"Daddy, I didn't mean to do it, honest! It was an axeldent."

He put his cold hand in mine and led me to the tenant house, next door, where a window pane had a round hole in it, as though a bullet had entered; he pointed to another pane with the same appearance. He was almost in tears, watching my face.

"How did it happen?" I asked.

"Well, Daddy, I was standing here on this bank, a-trying to shoot stones over the roof with my slingshot — and my foot slipped, and the stone hit the window." I frowned sharply.

"What about the other pane?" I demanded.

"My foot slipped two times," he admitted in a small voice.

Then I had to smile, and instantly he jumped upon my neck and hugged me tight. "Daddy, did you get my ball? Where is it?"

"I'll tell you where to find it," I said. "But you must promise to keep that slingshot out of my sight."

Okay, Daddy, I promise!" So he ran to get his ball.

Tonight, after he was asleep, I picked up his knickers. They seemed heavy, and the pockets rattled. I held them upside down above a table and saw six smooth pebbles, fall, four nuts, five screws, a small apple and three smudgy jellybeans.

One leg of his trousers was still heavy and stiff. I turned it inside out. There, thrust into the under side of the patch on the knee was the fateful slingshot—quite out of my sight, to be sure.

I laid it on top of that heterogeneous heap and, reflected that at the end of a perfect day, "all's well that ends well."

MISS ESTHER COHEN OF GALION, MARRIED SUNDAY IN COLUMBUS

GALION — The wedding Sunday of Esther Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen of Galion, and Samuel Mendlowitz, son of Emil Mendlowitz of Columbus, was a brilliant affair in the Red Room at the Neil House, Columbus. Rabbi Nathan Zeigler of Columbus read the single ring service in the presence of 130 relatives and friends at 5 p. m. Candlelight was used along the aisle to the improvised altar where seven-branched candleabra, ferns, palms and white flowers were used effectively.

The bride's two brothers, Ralph and Herbert Cohen of Galion, were ushers. Mrs. Jack London of Pittsburgh, Pa., sang two wedding songs.

To Lohengrin's wedding march, the bride entered with her father who gave her in marriage during the service. For her wedding, she wore a fitted princess gown of lace over satin. A Juliet cap of lace held a full three-quarter length tulle veil. The bridal bouquet was of gardenias, lilies of the valley and orchids.

Mrs. H. L. Weisman of Scarsdale, N. Y., was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a gown of blue with fitted lace bodice and bouffant tulle skirt. A garland of roses was in her hair, and her bouquet was of roses and orchids.

The flower girl was Renee Katz of Calumbus, a niece of the bridegroom, who wore peach colored taffeta trimmed in blue, and carried a Colonial bouquet of forget-me-nots and roses.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother-in-law, Herman Katz of Columbus.

After the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to the wedding party and all of the guests in the Parisienne Room of the Neil House.

The couple left immediately for New York to sail on the Counte de Savio for a Mediterranean cruise and a tour of Europe. They plan to be gone at least two months, and upon their return will reside in Columbus.

The bride was graduated from Galion high school in 1930, and later from Western Reserve university, Cleveland. Her husband was graduated from Ohio State university where he affiliated with Alpha Epsilon Pi, national social fraternity. He is president of the Capital Manufacturing and Supply company of Columbus and Detroit.

British Air Craft Attacked By Japs, Passengers Say

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Japanese warships attacked a British Imperial Airways flying boat south of the Crown Colony of Hong Kong Friday, passengers aboard the plane revealed today.

The aircraft was flying from Bangkok, Siam, to Hong Kong on the regular weekly Imperial Airways run with passengers and mail when the assault occurred, it was stated.

The incident, still another in the long list which have caused tension and tempers to boil in London and Tokyo, took place despite the fact the plane was clearly marked with British flags, the passengers said. It was believed British officials would lodge a stiff protest with Nipponese authorities.

According to the passengers, the British plane was following its regular route to Hong Kong when it passed over a group of Japanese warships, believed to have been destroyers.

As the plane soared overhead, they said, machine gun bullets and anti-aircraft shells fired by the ships below whizzed past—but failed to hit—the plane.

LIBRARY LOOTED

Burglary 6th In Week; Thieves Get $34 In Cash, Checks.

Police today continued their investigation into the burglary of Mansfield Public Library which was looted of $34 in cash and checks some time Friday night.

The burglary, the sixth in the city in the period of a week, was reported to police by Miss Lois Mac Kellar, head librarian, after she found two money bags missing from a desk on the main floor.

She told police that the bags had been placed in the desk drawer Friday and that they contained approximately $14 in bills and two checks.

Police found that no forcible entry had been made to the building and that all doors and windows were locked, which led them to believe that someone had hidden in the building until after the library had been locked for the night and then looted the desk. Nothing else was disturbed they said.

URGES INQUIRY

Duffy Seeks State Probe of 'Draft Davey' Petitions.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—An immediate investigation by the civil service commission of reports that state employes have been circulating petitions to "draft" Governor L. Davey for a third term, was urged today by Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy.

In a letter to the commission Duffy said:

"I suggest the commission make an immediate investigation of this matter and that you turn over to my office all evidence that you may secure so that the instituting of criminal action may be determined."

Duffy, who had the circulation of the petitions officially brought to his attention by Mrs. C. M. Bookman, Cincinnati, president of the Ohio League of Women Voters, said:

"The solicitation of signatures to such petitions as you mention by employes in the classified civil service is expressly prohibited by law and is made a misdemeanor. It is apparent that the circulation in question is a direct violation of the law."

Duffy sad a copy of his statement would be sent to all county prosecutors so that they might conduct their own invesigations.

URGED TO FILE WAGE REPORTS

Employers Ask to Submit Returns For Last Half of 1937.

Employers whose workers are covered by the Social Security act were urged today by R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield district office of the Security board, to file their informational returns showing the taxable wages of various persons in their employ during the last half of 1937.

In some cities the bureau of internal revenue has reported that 25 per cent of the employers who have paid their contributions for old age insurance, have failed to file the information which is required by the Social Security act, Mish said. He urged employers to file these returns with the United States deputy collector of internal revenue.

The Mansfield field office of the old age insurance bureau in the Richland Trust building is still issuing Social Security account numbers to all workers regardless of age, Mish said. He explained that the Ohio unemployment compensation commission will use the account numbers for the purpose of identification when benefits are paid later in this state.

Congress, Set for Tax Revisions, Heads for New Fight

SPEEDY HOUSE ACTION ON NEW LEVIES SEEN

Government Reorganization to Draw Senate Fire; Naval Bill on Calendar.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON— Congress was ready today to relieve business of burdensome taxes quickly, but headed toward a dispute over government reorganization which threatened to divide the New Deal Democratic legislative forces still further.

When government reorganization comes up in the senate today a group of Democrats who opposed judiciary reorganization will resume the battle against what they consider to be a centralization of power in the White House.

Quick Passage Looms.

The house, resuming its discussion of the $125,000,000 interior department appropriation bill, expects to reach the tax bill this week and to pass it in short order. Next up for house consideration will be the emergency naval construction bill, presented to congress as a $800,000,000 measure but conceded now to require $1,000,000,000 or more.

Off the floor senate committees this week will be deep in politically potent deliberations.

1. Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to presidents since Woodrow Wilson entered the White House, will appear before the committee investigating unemployment causes

2. The senate judiciary committee will report on fitness of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson to be solicitor general.

3. The Interstate commerce committee tomorrow will resume hearings on the hotly debated Borah-O'Mahoney bill to license corporations engaging in interstate commerce.

Resumes Investigation.

4. The following day the education and labor committee headed by Sen. Robert M. LaFollette. P. Wis., will resume its investigation of civil liberties, with the National Association of Manufacturers under inquiry.

5. Vice President Garner will appoint a select committee to investigate alleged subversive and communistic activities among maritime labor.

House of representatives approval of a tax bill modifying the capital gains and corporation surplus levies seems now to be assured by March 2 at the latest. The tax bill will go then to the senate where there is sentiment to ease still further these tax rates against which businsss has most vigorously protested

Nazi Bunds In U. S. "Racket," Charges Legion Official

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (INS) —Terming organization of brownshirt Nazi groups in this country a "well-paid racket for a sinister purpose," Homer L. Chaillaux, national Americanism director of the American Legion, today announced a policy of determined opposition to the spread of German-American bunds.

"With due regard for law and order," the Legion has undertaken a national fight against the Nazi movement in the United States. Chaillaux said.

Chaillaux called attention to recent disorders in Chicago, Buffalo and in Rochester, N. Y., which he said attested to the concerted effort of brown shirt groups to promote their "subversive activities which endanger the welfare of this nation."

The Legion chieftain was particularly annoyed at an attempt to stage a Nazi rally on March 14 in Indianapolis, national Legion headquarters. This effort has been frustrated, at least temporarily, by refusal of five German-American organizations to rent their halls to the brown shirts.

Up and Down THE STREET

It will take more than a vertabrae fracture to stop Andy Gilbert, who performed with the Mansfield baseball club in the Ohio State league last summer. Gilbert, whose baseball future appeared over after the accident in which he suffered the fracture at the fairground, was a visitor in the city over the week-end, minus the brace he wore around his neck after his dismissal from the hospital. Using his own words, he's "just as good as new"

Imagine her surprise—when Mrs. Ethel Woodworth, 125 West Second street, pulled to a stop at the intersection of Walnut and Second streets, after driving two blocks, to find that she had another car in tow. She discovered that the bumper of the other auto had become caught with the rear bumper on her car and she had towed the machine for a block and a half. Police Chief Meade K. Bates who happened on the scene about that time took the car to the police garage and called the owner, explaining what had happened.

In addition to his customary duties, Sheriff E. P. Long had a busy week-end ironing out domestic difficulties of irate husbands and wives. Called on three cases in widely scattered parts of the county, the sheriff found battles in progress or just subsiding. He came back, however, with the trouble settled and without making an arrest. The biggest loss was some broken glassware which was used as ammunition in one home. "It must have been a change in the weather," Long explained.

Two poems written by Helen Loomis Linham, Mansfield poet, have been set to music. "Songs" was adapted to music composed by Jennie Hitchens of Boston, Mass., composer of a number of songs. Kathryn Shriver, music instructor in the public schools of Lampeter, Pa., has written the music for Mrs. Linham's "Bird With a Broken Wing." Several years ago another one of her poems, "Until Eternity," provided the lyrics for a Cincinnati composer.

WOUNDED OHIO STATE STUDENT FACING ARMED ROBBERY CHARGE

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT—Frank J. Hendricks, 24, former collegiate football star in Ohio, lay in receiving hospital today with a police bullet wound in his left thigh and faced an accusation that he staged an armed robbery.

Assistant Prosecutor Harry Letzer quoted Hendricks as saying "I had to have money to continue my education."

Hendricks was graduated from Mt. Union college in 1936 and had been doing study at Ohio State college. While at Mt. Union he was a star halfback and won a place on the all-Ohio conference eleven.

Letzer said Hendricks told him he came to Detroit expressly to stage holdus. He owed a $39 Detroit hotel bill.

"I issued $100 worth of bum checks and I wanted to square those too," Letzer said Hendricks told him.

Hendricks was shot Sunday afternoon a few minutes after a gas station attendant had been robbed of $38.75. The robber got into a taxicab and was followed in a few minutes by a police scout car.

A few blocks from the scene of the holdup Hendricks got out of a cab and Patrolman Pat Brief fired two shots at him, one hitting him in the thigh.

Sergt. Earl Anderson said Hendricks told him he had made an unsuccesful attempt to get work in Detroit, Buffalo and several Ohio cities.

Police said Hendricks carried a .38 calibre special revolver evidently having been used in railway mail service.

At Columbus, Joseph A. Park, Ohio State university dean of men, said Hendricks had been missing from the campus about 10 days. The family home is in Alliance.

EX-NAVY HEAD SAYS AMERICA WOULD NEED AID

Declares Japan Leads U. S In Arms Program, Holds Combination Only Threat.

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO — A leading Japanese naval authority asserted today that 'America is unable to have anything like confidence in her navy's ability to cope with Japan" because Japan has defeated the United States in naval building

The authority, Rear Admiral Tota Ishimaru, retired, considered one of Japan's foremost commentators on naval affairs, made this analysis in a new magazine article.

'Superior in Quality.'

The Japanese navy, he said, is superior in quality to the United States fleet. He added that Japan had no need to fear a naval building race

A naval war, the retired admiral said, would be dangerous to Japan only if Great Britain were able to enlist both the United States and Russia.

Ishimaru declared that a poorer Germany outlasted a wealthier England before the World war and that Japan was "far from the loser" against the United States.

"In competition with Japan," he wrote, "the United States was financially harrassed. It has been discovered that Japan was far from being the loser.

"The Japanese navy's qualitative efficiency is superior to America's to such an extent that America is unable to have anything like confidence in her navy's ability to cope with Japan."

Calls Race Inevitable.

Ishimaru concluded that a naval building race was inevitable, and added significantly:

"Despite the (Japanese) foreign office's denial that Japan is building 43,000-ton capital ships, the race has already started. Since Britain is already re-arming, America must take necessary steps to keep her navy on equal terms. Japan, too, will be forced to participate."

He doubted that the United States and England would be able to co-operate efficiently in a Pacific ocean war.

Ishimaru said Soviet Russian participation in a Pacific war would be serious.

"Japan," he said, "must encourage German and Italian naval expansion on one hand On the other she must maintain at whatever cost a navy equal to America's.

"That done, she need have no fear of the combined forces of Britain and America."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Cashing In On His Job.

FOR A long time the manner in which members of the Roosevelt family were using the White House to make money for themselves got little adverse comment in the newspapers and almost none from opposing politicians. There was, of course, a great deal of private talk—even among the president's friends, many of whom deplored it and almost none defended. By those not friendly it was regarded as a shocking commercialization of the presidency, without precedent in our history.

BUT UNTIL recently there was strangely little public comment. There were reasons for this. One was the custom among his opponents, while condemning Mr. Roosevelt's policies, to laud him personally—to picture him as high-minded though mistaken. It was a custom carried to extremes. Partly, this was to avoid the appearance of personal attack and partly because of the president's early popularity which made it possible for him to do almost anything without public resentment. A second reason was natural reluctance to be publicly critical of the members of the president's family—particularly the feminine ones. A third was because there were so many great national issues projected by the New Deal that the family capitalization of the presidency, while indicative of bad taste and a low ethical standard, was certainly trivial by comparison.

WITHIN the last few weeks, however, there has come an end to this curious immunity. In a number of newspapers satirical editorials and dispatches about the way in which the family is "cleaning up" have appeared Various columnists have dealt with the subject and in congress the comment has been bitterly denunciatory. While all this has been smoldering for some time the outburst was precipitated by the announcement that the president himself had written a series of thirty articles which had been sold to a newspaper syndicate, three for a weekly magazine, and was about to publish the first volume of his public papers and addresses. The compensation for the newspaper and magazine articles alone is estimated at $100,000.

THE price paid is clearly based on the face that the author is president of the United States. Of this transaction one paper—the Herald-Tribune — which though Republican, has consistently avoided anything like personal criticism, said. "The country is properly generous to its presidents. It begrudges them neither salary, expense accounts nor ample vacations. But to cash in on a huge scale on the job itself by selling to the highest bidder his own accounting of his stewardship is so unprecedented and steep a descent for a president as to give the whole nation pause."

Other papers have been equally trenchant in their comment. One writer recalls the president's recent criticism of the motor industry for "high pressure salesmanship" in connection with the sort of salesmanship used to place his newspaper articles. The first syndicate, to which they were offered for $100,000, declined them.

SOME commentators have presented a summariaztion of the financial activities of the Roosevelt family which is certainly amazing .They point out that the president's mother, recently indorsed a baking powder in a series of newspaper advertisements containing her picture and a facsimile of her signature. What was paid for this, of course, there is no way of knowing. Then, a number of writers have dealt more or less candidly with the fact that James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president and one of his $10,000 secretaries, is head of the insurance firm of Roosevelt and Sargent, which numbers among its clients many of the greatest corporations and most conspicuous economic royalists in the country, some of whom have close contact with the government, such as the National Distillers association, the Transcontinental and Western Airways, the Columbia Broadcasting company, Armour and company, New England Power company and many others.

IT IS not charged that young Mr. Roosevelt deliberately peddles his father's influence. He does not have to. What is charged is that the mere fact that he is his father's son and also his secretary makes it possible for Roosevelt and Sargent to sell insurance which would be completely impossible if Mr. Roosevelt's name were Smith, Brown or Jones. Again there is no way of knowing how much money young Mr. Roosevelt makes out of the insurance business and the efforts, last year in the house committee, to get a look at his income tax returns were frustrated by administration congressmen, but a friend rather close both to him and his father puts the figure at $150,000 annually. In caustically commenting on this situation Mr. Westbrook Pegler recalled that the president had said that "the best citizenship calls for ethics as well as honesty," and suggested that a discussion of the ethics of son James continuing as a silent member of this insurance firm would be interesting.

THEN, TOO, it is pointed out, the president's son-in-law and daughter are both on Mr. Hearst's pay roll in Seattle, and his second son, Elliott, is in charge of the Hearst radio stations, and that none of the three would be getting their salaries but for their White House connection. Altogether it is an extraordinary story and it is high time it all came out in the open. Just as a contrast, one correspondent recalls that three years ago when the vice-president was offered a contract for $1,000 a week for a fifteen-minute broadcast he replied, "Jack Garner isn't worth $1,000 for fifteen minutes and the vice-president is not for sale."

Moscow Ready For Trial of 21 In 'Greatest' Purge Sensation

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Twenty-one prominent men of the Soviet Union face the military collegium of the supreme court Wednesday in what may be the most sensational of all the sensational trials during the three years of a political purge without precedent in modern history.

The men to be tried are of outstanding calibre: the charges which they face are perhaps more terrible than any that have been made against a single group of defendants.

It was indicated plainly also that in this trial the prosecution would seek to forge the final links of evidence to prove to the world that former trials were fair and that the government and the country, had been endangered by a conspiracy of almost unbelievable proportions which reached back not a few years merely but to the very first days of the Soviet Union

Murder conspiracy to murder Lenin, Stalin and other supreme leaders treason, conspiracy to dismember the union; espionage; sabotage, terrorism; over throw of the government; restoration of capitalism—all these and more were charged against the 21 men to be tried. It was believed certain that conviction would mean death.

But furthermore, incident to the trial, it is charged that these men linked up among themselves every element of underground opposition — Trotskyists, Zinovievites, Bukharinites, Mensheviks.

Trotsky himself, Leon Trotsky, the war lord now exiled in Mexico, was accused of conspiracy with foreign powers as far back as 1921.

It was believed that the trial would be a public one and that foreign diplomats and newspaper correspondents would be admitted.

KANSAS GLENN SETS ANOTHER RECORD DESPITE MAJOR HANDICAP.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—Like a wraith, he flitted down the home stretch 30 years in front to a new world's record of 3:48.4 for the 1,500 meters, and not one person in the 15,000 who yowled and howled over the performance knew that Glen Cunningham was performing under difficulties. That old school house fire at the age of eight was still exacting its physical toll. Nobody knows it, and it's being told now for the first time that Cunningham is breaking world's records and has won 10 straight races with a pair of legs that are shedding sinews and flash as they go.

Cunningham's legs have lost at least three pounds in shedded tissue since the start of the indoor season.

The answer is found in recreated tissue from the burns sustained in the original accident in the Kansas school house. Cunningham, for the first time in his life, has real legs under him. It sounds silly in connection with a world's champion runner, but it is the truth. The man's legs are bigger and stronger today than they ever were.

Taking him on his performance on Saturday night, he should have and would have gone on for the additional 120 yards to an all_time all-conditions world record of 4.05 for the one-mile distance. I'm convinced that the performance in question can be done by Cunningham any time he sets his mind to it. I'm also convinced that the pace doesn't have to be set for him; that he can do this himself, when the spirit moves him. And I'm told that the spirit will so move him in the Knights of Columbus games two weeks hence.

THE fellow simply has too much foot for anything now running the mile or any kindred distance. I know that he has been licked by Jack Lovelock, of New Zealand, and that Stanley Wooderson now has a 4:06 and a fraction mile pending on the books. But any time Cunningham is right, Lovelock and Wooderson will be knocked off, and so will their records. In fact, the only time he has ever been wrong was on a cold day where that faulty circulation in his legs has failed him.

This seems like a declaration of faulty equipment, indicating certain failure. Instead, the handicap has only served to imbue the gent with greater gusto. But one does wonder what the fellow would really do if he were only right

Indians Walk Off Ice, Barons Win, 3 to 2.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons and the city's hockey addicts today waited with interest for a pronouncement from International-American league officials on the walkout of the Springfield Indians here Saturday night.

The Indians refused to return to the ice for an overtime period after Phil Hergesheimer scored a tying goal with less than one second to go in the regular game. All the Barons had to do was to go through the formality of slamming the puck into the net in the overtime to win 3 and 2. Indian Coach George Boucher, who said the goal was scored after the game ended, protested.

Popular Claybourn, Davis Meet Tonight

"GENTLEMAN JACK" CLAYBOURN of Chicago returns to Mansfield tonight to show the wrestling fans how he does it.

Claybourn has won a large following because of his skill on the mat, and tonight in the Armory ring he will be offered a chance to pit his cleverness against one of the toughest boys he has been called on to meet in Mansfield.

The colored Chicagoan meets Sterling (Silver) Davis of Texas in the headline bout on the Quality* club card.

Davis is one of the ruffians of the mat sport, and it is very likely that Claybourn will be banged up a bit tonight.

Advance Guard Reaches Camp

Indians Open Drills With One-Hour Workout.

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Batterymen and rookie infielders forming the advance guard of the Cleveland Indians in training camp here were ready today for serious work in preparing for the 1938 American league baseball campaign.

Most of them took part in limbering up exercises in a one-hour workout yesterday in which they were limited to 10 minutes of easy throwing.

In camp today were: Manager Oscar Vitt; Coaches Jimmy Bassler and Willy Schang; Pitchers Mel Harder, Denny Galehouse, Bob Feller, Bill Zuber, Johnny Humphries, Ken Jungles, Tom Drake, Charlie Stanceu, Al Milnar; Catchers Rollie Hemsley, Frankie Pytlak and Henry Helf; and Infielders Oscar Grames, Ken Keltner, Tommy Irwin and Don Gugler.

Pitcher Joe Heving was expected to arrive today and Johnny Allen Wednesday. Hurlers Willis Hudlin and Earl Whitehill are on the holdout list.

Following yesterday's workout Manager Vitt went into a huddle with "Rollicking Rollie" Hemsley, reputed playboy catcher obtained from the St. Louis Browns, and announced later that he believed Hemsley would need little if any disciplining this season.

"I'm convinced he meant it when he said I wouldn't have to worry about his behavior this year," Vitt declared.

Leaders Face More Trouble

Lutherans Meet Christians at Y Tuesday.

There's more trouble in store for the First Lutheran cagers in the Class B Church league at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night.

The Lutherans were forced to defeat the Park Avenue Baptists last week to gain undisputed possession of first place, and this week they will have to beat the third place First Christian quintet to assure themselves of retention of the top post.

The second place Baptists also face a battle Tuesday. They meet the Mayflower club, which holds down the fourth position. This game is scheduled at 8 p. m., and follows the Lutheran-Christian melee.

In the first game at 7 p. m., Central M. E. meets St. Johns. First M. E. tackles First Presbyterian and N'Nai Jacob faces South Main in the other games.

Butler, County Champion, and Ontario Point for District Cage Tournament

Bulldogs Annex First Title By Breaking Domination Of Springfield Team In Finals; 35-30; Madison Wins Consolation Crown.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

BUTLER and Ontario high school hoopsters today carried the responsibility of representing Richland county in the Class B district basketball tournament to open in Carey this week-end.

It will be no new experience for either school to compete in the district affair, but it will be the first time in history that Butler will represent the county as champion.

Coach M. L. Stearns' Bulldogs lived up to the pre-tournament dope as one of the most dangerous entries in the county elimination by defeating the defending champions of Springfield township, 35 to 30, in the finals before a near-capacity crowd at Mansfield high school Saturday night.

In turning back the Warriors in the finals, Butler not only won its first county championship, but also handed Ontario its first county tournament defeat since 1934.

Ontario won the county title in 1935, 1936 and 1937, and became the first Richland team to advance to the state championships when it added the district honors to its collection last year.

Finished Second Twice.

While Butler never won the championship before this year, the Bulldogs finished second twice. In 1934, the Bulldogs lost to Plymouth in the finals, and bowed to Ontario the following year.

Whether either county team will be a serious contender in the district elimination remains to be seen, but neither can be denied recognition in the pre-tourney reckoning.

Butler is represented by a splendid ball team. The same can be said about Ontario, although this winter's edition of the Warriors hardly compares with last year's team which reached the state tournament.

In defeating Ontario, Butler gained revenge for the only two defeats marring its 1937-38 record. The margin of one of the two setbacks administered by Ontario was provided by a Butler player who accidentally scored a basket for the Warriors.

With one side of the gym packed almost solidly with Butler followers, the Stearnsmen put on a great exhibition as they broke the domination of Ontario in county tornament play.

Lead Changes Often.

It was a thrill-packed game in which the lead changed eight times in the first half. The Bulldogs obtained the lead on which they rode to victory in the final minute of the second period when Bob Boals sank a short shot to give them a 16-15 lead.

Butler cinched the victory in the third quarter when they scored 16 points to only four for the defending kings to go into the final period holding a 32-19 advantage. Coach Orv Kibler's men made a desperate attempt to overtake Butler in the last period, and although they held the Bulldogs scoreless from the field, they were unable to reduce the margin by more than five points.

Dick King, who scored 14 points, and Kenny Miller were brilliant for Butler in the important game, while Matt Hager, who accounted for 15 points, and Dick Casad, playing with the handicap of three personals inflicted in the first couple of minutes, stood out for the losers.

While no credit can be denied the Bulldogs in their successful championship drive, Ontario was confronted with the toughest assignments any team encountered in the tournament this year.

Ontario was forced to dispose of three of the ranking contenders in Madison, Shiloh and Lexington to reach the finals, while Butler's pre-finals competition was provided by Bellville and Lucas, with neither club pressing the Bulldogs.

Wins By Point.

Ontario had no opportunity to slacken its pace in preparation for the finals Saturday afternoon with Lexington. The Kiblermen were forced to the very limit to eliminate the Minutemen, 32 to 31, in a game in which the outcome was doubtful until the finish.

Butler found Lucas less troublesome in the semi-finals as it hung up a comparatively easy 45 to 31 triumph.

Showing more class than they did at any time in the tournament, Madison's Rams walked over the surprised Union club, 45 to 16, to annex the consolation championship.

Union provided the biggest upset of the tournament in the consolation semi-finals Saturday afternoon by edging Shiloh, which was ranked with Ontario as cofavorites in the pre-elimination dope. The score was 30 to 28.

Madison reached the consolations finals by turning back Bellville, 25 to 13.

The foul shooting contest held in conjunction with the tournament games Saturday was won by LeRoy Black of Butler, who defeated Carl Ridgeway of Ontario in a shoot-off, Black and Ridgeway tied for the lead with 17 baskets out of 20 attempts.

The tournament was managed by W. A. Wickline, Lexington high principal.

Rangers Take Close Battle

Hang Up 14-11 Victory Over First M. E. Five.

Trailing 9 to 6 at the half, the Boy Rangers rallied to defeat First M. E., 14 to 11, in the only Class C Church league game which was not one-sided at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday.

In the other games, South Main trounched St. Paul's, 42 to 7; First Lutheran walloped United Presbyterian, 41 to 17, and First Presbyterian whipped Congregational, 35 to 7.

Butler, Ontario Dominate County All-Tournament Team

TWO members of the championship Butler club, two of the runner-up Ontario and one Lexington player comprise the Richland county tournament all-star team selected with the assistance of officials and coaches.

Dick King and Kenny Miller of Butler were unanimous choices for berths on the team. Miller is paired at the forwards with Matt Hager of Ontario, who accounted for 46 points in four games to lead the scoring in this year's tournament, King was placed at center.

The guard posts were voted to Richard Rule of Lexington, who scored 24 points in one game to establish a new tournament record, and Dick Casad, probably the best defensive player in the elimination. Rule also finished second in the tournament scoring with 37 points.

Other players who received mention in the selection were Ward of Butler, Crawford and Greulich of Lucas, Tolles of Union, Sheriff of Bellville, R. Kirchbaum of Adario, Hugeunard of Lexington, Miller of Madison, Prion of Ontario and R. Moser of Shiloh.

Congratulations, Butler!

LOST LADY + + +

SYNOPSIS

Charlie Kilbourne is the wealthy owner of Rancho Santa Maria in Southern California but spends much of his time prospecting with Tom Castle, his chum in Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders in Cuba. The day after a dynamite blast reveals a lode rich in gold Kilbourne's son Murray, known as Don Murray, mining engineer, rides out to their desert shack. He joins in the jubilation over the gold strike that is to make Tom wealthy too. Banter leads to a challenge at marksmanship. Kilbourne slips and falls, his six-gun is discharged, the bullet hitting Tom. As Castle is dying he tells of an unhappy marriage, a daughter Sue, now 20, and the death of his estranged wife. He has sought Sue in vain but an anonymous writer has intimated she is in Tijuana. Tom writes a short will making Sue his sole heir if found within three years; if not, Murray is to get Tom's share in the mine. The only clue Tom leaves is a picture of his wife taken when Sue was a baby. After visiting Don Vicente Torres, his father's cousin, and Senorita Mercedes who was his childhood sweetheart at Rancho La Luz, Murray goes to advise with Shane O'Hara, master of Rancho Soledad. Shane insists upon lending him his faithful foreman Jose Verdugo to aid in his search. Jose put their car in his cousin Manuel's garage in Tijuana and Murray starts a round of the cafes. In one, two girls who might be Americans appear as entertainers and one, he thinks, bears a resemblance to Sue's mother.

CHAPTER V

When the waiter brought Murray his next drink, Kilbourne asked a question.

"By what names are the two senoritas known?"

"The one in pink, senor, is Dolores. The other one Carmen. They have been with us but a week, senor."

"Any last names?" Murray inquired.

The waiter smiled.

"No doubt, senor," he replied. "No doubt. But entertainers—one makes no inquiries about them when they are employed. And I myself know nothing about them. Except—but no, senor, I really know nothing." And he appeared anxious to go elsewhere.

"Except—" Murray murmured. He handed the waiter a dollar bill. "Would you be kind enough to request one of them to have a little refreshment at my table when the song is finished?"

The waiter's hand seized the proffered tip, but he seemed worried.

"I will do my best, senor," he said. "Yes, assuredly I will tell them. But senor..."

"Please assure them that I have not the slightest desire for anything more than a few minutes of the charming society of one of them," said Murray.

"Oh, it is not that, senor—it is not that. But—" He paused, then went swiftly away. And when he song was finished Murray saw him speak to the two girls, who glanced toward his table, looked at each other, and then spoke again to the waiter. Then the one in the pink dress, Dolores, came to him.

"You desired to offer me refreshments, senor?" she inquired in Spanish.

"If you would be so gracious," replied Murray in the same tongue, arising to set her chair, and then to give her order and his own to a waiter—but not the same waiter. The other had been tall and hungry-looking; this one was short and well-nourished.

As Murray turned back to the girl, a heavy-set, dark Mexican entered the cabe, and brushed Murray's chair as he passed. Casually the American turned his head to see who had come so close. He noted that the man's hair, surprisingly for a Mexican, was red. Noted also that the man had seated himself not ten feet away, at an otherwise empty table. And as he was about to speak to Dolores again, things happened.

Carmen appeared and the red-haired man beckoned to her.

With a quick little nod she started toward him. But on her way another man reached out and, laughing, seized her wrist, pulled her down into a chair beside him.

The girl struggled to rise. Not, the American perceived, because she objected to the man's company—that was part of her business—but because the red-haired one was scowling blackly, awaiting her coming.

To the man who held her she said some words. Looked toward the red-haired man. Her companion did likewise, then grinned, shrugged his shoulders. Refused to let her go.

Red-hair abruptly arose. Took half a dozen quick steps. Seized the wrist of the man who held Carmen, broke his grip and slapped him heavily across the cheek.

For a moment there was silence, except for the rough scrape of a chair thrust backward.

Then the man who had been slapped leaped to his feet. His hand went inside his coat. His dark face was pale.

But before he could withdraw his hand, the red-haired man's hand leaped, a gun appeared in it. The gun flashed, spit. And the man it had been aimed at fell forward upon the table, quivered, lay silent.

Red-hair stared about him slowly, appraisingly. No one moved. Then, still holding the gun in his right hand, he deliberately drew back his left and struck Carmen across the mouth.

The girl gave a little cry and sank into a chair, head buried in her arms.

Red-hair turned and started toward the door, his gun menacing.

Again he had to touch Murray's chair in passing—the space between the tables was small. And as he did so, he smiled grimly at Dolores and pointed his gun at the American.

"Turn that thing the other way, hombre," commanded Murray, in Spanish.

The red-haired man scowled—uttered a vulgar word at the American.

Murray's hand flashed upward and downward—upon the revolver. He had noted the style of the weapon. Now he pulled an old trick—for as his hand touched the revolver his fingers caught the lock of it, pulled sharply upward and forward and the gun broke, scattering its remaining cartridges on the floor. And the next instant the revolver was in the American's hand. He tossed it under a table. Then very deliberately he drew back his right arm and slapped the red-haired man across the mouth.

"That," he said, "is for the girl. And this—" again his hand struck the heavy face—"is for the word you used to me. Now get out."

For perhaps five seconds the red-haired man stared, as if unbelieving, at the American's face. Then, without a word, he strode toward the door and vanished.

"Madre de Dios," painted Dolores, as Murray turned back to her. "Madre de Dios! Do you know what you have done? Do you know who that man is?"

"Is it important?" asked Murray, glancing toward the table where Carmen still bowed her head on her arms, and where various men were about to carry away the murdered man.

"Is it important!" The girl's eyes stared at Murray. "Senor, you had better now go far away from here, for he will asurredly kill you—or have you killed."

She turned to look behind her, and terror was in her eyes as she saw the slain man carried from the room by two others. The room buzzed, but nobody left their seats. It was always best to attend strictly to one's own business on such an occasion as this.

"Who is the red-haired one?" asked Murray.

"Oh—he—this red-haired one as you call him, is—is Vasquez the Red."

"And aside from having red hair," Murray asked, "Has he got anything else?"

Dolores lighted a cigaret with fingers which trembled.

"Only, senor," she said, "only the entire Tijuana underworld. You—must be the only Mexican in Baja, California, who does not know who Red Vasquez is!"

She rose and went swiftly to put her arms about the weeping Carmen, to lift her and lead her from the room.

When Murray left the cafe for his hotel he did not observe that he was followed by a shadow which kept its right hand in its coat pocket—a shadow which ceased to follow only when the American had entered the building.

THEATER

THIS month Jean Hersholt celebrates the 25th anniversary of his picture work. His record shows what an advantage a character player has over a romantic star who becomes an idol for a few years and then drops into obscurity. During the 25 years there have been only four months when Hersholt was't under contract to some studio and only three weeks when he was out of work. He doesn't remember the name of his first picture, because he made two the same day, March 7, 1913, at the old Thomas Ince studio. His salary was $15 a week, and a year later when he got a raise of $3 a week, he got married. Another difference between Hersholt and the romantic stars is that he has been married to the same woman all of these years. His 440th picture will be the Irving Berlin story, "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Cinderella In Disguise.

"Mannequin" is really Cinderella in disguise, for Joar Crawford's rise from a Hester street tenement to a millionaire's penthouse, in the Katherine Brush story of the same name. The picture ranges from the drab waterfront to the elegance of Park avenue. And although she is seen as a shop girl in the first part of the picture, Miss Crawford also has opportunity to wear some stunning costumes, both as a chorus girl, as a mannequin in a smart style show and later as the wife of a millionaire. Spencer Tracy and Miss Crawford are costarred, while Alan Curtis, a likeable newcomer, plays a role of villainy and intrigue.

Pity Mr. Taylor.

Few actors have started a career under so trying circumstances as those that surround Robert Taylor, star of "A Yank At Oxford," the Ohio theater offering. Screen observers contend that Taylor isn't a bad actor for the amount of experience he has had; probably better than two-thirds of the younger male players in Hollywood. But no one believes it. And all because of the terrible handicap of being handsome to the point of "beautiful." No one takes young Taylor seriously because of his looks, and if he did the very best job of acting in the world there would still be sly references to the "beautiful Mr. Taylor," which threatchs to kill a most promising career. But the truth of the matter is he turns in a very creditable performance as the smalltown American boy at old Oxford.

Distinguished Trio Featured.

Instead of one re-issue and a new feature, the Majestic this week offers two revivals of pictures that were outstanding in their season. Of these "Dark Angle" is an impressive, dramatic story of three lives that were deeply influenced by the war; a girl and two boys who grew up together, the girl betrothed to one, but loving another. The war, like a dark angel of tragedy, hits them all. Merle Oberon, Fredric March and Herbert Marshall form a distinguished trio in the picture. The second feature is "Annie Oakley" with Barbara Stanwyck and Preston Foster, the story of one of the greatest circus stars in America.

Comedies Offered.

Two comedies, one romantic and the other musical, make up the Ritz bill for the middle of the week, both with No. 1 stars. Joan Blondell and Errol Flynn, with Allen Jenkins and Hugh Herbert, will be shown in "The Perfect Specimen," in which a 100 per cent perfect young man who has never had a date and never kissed a girl is shown a thing or two. The musical comedy is the Fred Astaire picture "Damsel In Distress" with George Burns and Gracie Allen. Joan Fontaine is the heart interest. The story is by Wodehouse and the music by the late George Gershwin.

ANALYSTS NOTE IMPROVEMENT IN STEEL LINE

Encouraged by Survey Showing Increased Orders; Trends Mixed Today.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks failed to develop definite trends in today's early market dealings.

While minor declines were in the majority near the second hour, numerous issues were unchanged and modest plus signs were to be seen here and there. Volume was exceptionally small.

Traders were inclined to stand aside pending the meeting of the supreme court, further congressional action on tax bills and more assurance spring business betterment would appear.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Market analysts saw a ray of hope in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said some slight improvement in orders for the metal was in evidence which, while spread over various lines, largely was confined to lighter products.

Although warning that a number of deterrent factors must be cleared up before any substantial expansion of demand develops, the review thought seasonal requirements, at least, would give impetus to mill activities.

COUNTY CUTS TRAFFIC TOLL

Two Dead First Two Months of 1938 as Compared With Five Last Year.

Harding highway, eight miles west of Marion. The victims were Martha Radcliff, 23, and Robert Anderson, 26.

Edward Taylor, 33, of Buchtel, near Athens, was burned to death in his car along a highway southwest of Nelsonville. Police said he apparently had fallen asleep and dropped a lighted cigaret into the car's upholstery.

Accidents in Cleveland took the lives of Peter C. Schmit, 55, and Emery Jambor, 74, while a hitskip auto fatally injured George Petrut at Warren.

Dwight Walters, jr., 20, Cleveland Heights, and John Ritchey, 26, R. D. 2, Ashland, were injured, neither seriously in two Ashland county accidents. Both were treated at Samaritan hospital, Ashland.

Walters was struck by an automobile driven by W. R. Clark, Cheviot, O., while he stood beside a wrecker at the scene of another accident on route 42 six miles northeast of Ashland. Ritchey was hurt in head-on collision of two automobiles on route 42 near Ashland.

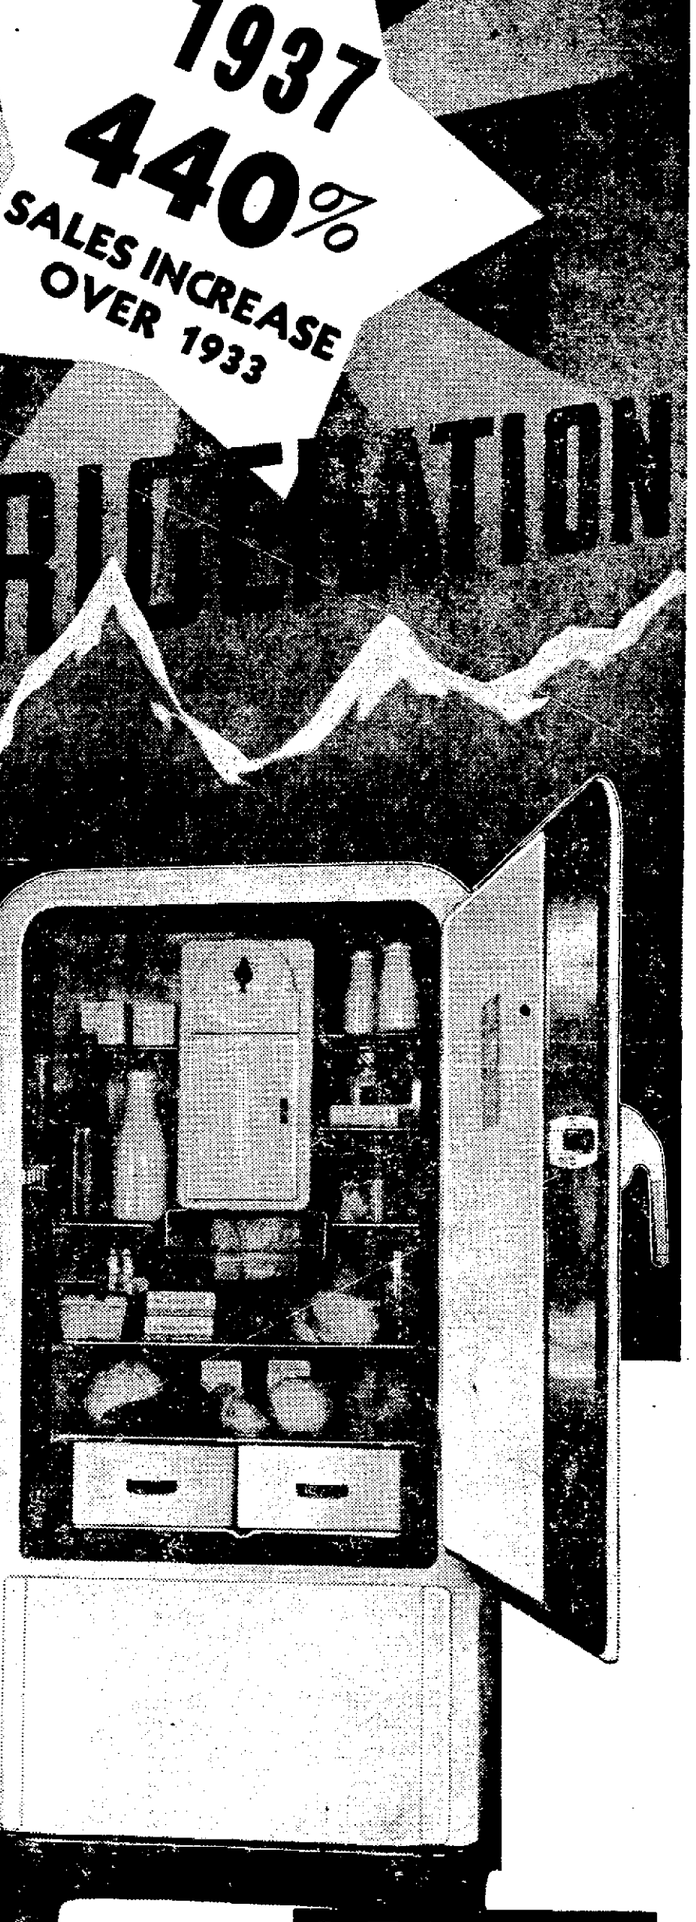
1937 440% SALES INCREASE OVER 1933
GAS REFRIGERATION
Still Going GREAT in '38


Because It Is Silent — Freezes Without Moving Parts — Operates For Less Than 2c a Day

The 1938 gas refrigerator makes its debut — more beautiful, more convenient, and more efficient than ever. Eleven years of increasing acceptance have made the Servel Electrolux organization the world's largest exclusive manufacturers of refrigeration equipment. Advance orders and inquiries indicate that 1938 will be another banner sales year, exceeding all others.

Why the big swing to the gas refrigerator? Housewives are putting an increased premium on its silence — on the fact that it freezes without moving parts to wear out. But you'll find no premium price on the cost of operation. Gas refrigeration is the most economical of any method, operating on high grade gas for less than two cents a day. Visit The Gas Company to see the refrigerator you hear so much about, but never hear. Ask how you can pay for it out of the savings it will make for you.

SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas REFRIGERATOR

Mrs. Pauline Malikowski, 2930 Lagrange Street, Toledo, Ohio, says—
"I have owned an Electrolux gas refrigerator for the past year and find it inexpensive to operate. But most of all, I appreciate its silent operation, and even temperature. I am very pleased with my Electrolux because I have used another type of automatic refrigerator."

Mrs. Thomas Montgomery, 950 S. 22nd Street, Columbus, Ohio, says—
"We purchased a Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator after using other types of refrigerators for many years. Great satisfaction to know food is properly preserved at all times. Silence and low operating cost make it a pleasure to own and recommend."

STOCK PRICES MANEUVER IN NARROW RANGE

Gains Limited in Final Session Of Week in Which Leaders Advance Slightly.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The narrow price movements ruled today's early stock market dealings.

At a slow opening small gains were recorded for Sante Fe, Bethlehem, National Distillers, N. Y. Central and U. S. Rubber.

About even were U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of N. J., Anaconda, Sears Roebuck and Chrysler. General Motors lost a major fraction.

Sales Encourage Motors.

On the side of motor shares were reports that new car sales thus far in February had registered gains ranging up to 25 per cent over the January level.

Although department store levels in the New York district have suffered a much larger decline from the corresponding 1937 figures than had been experienced in preceding weeks, recent estimates by trade observers indicated inventories in the metropolis as well as in other eastern centers had dropped substantially under the same time a year ago.

JUVENILE 'GANG' ADMIT 2 THEFTS

4 Boys, Including One 7 Years Old, Confess Burglarizing Home and Drug Store.

They also admitted taking two boxes of hypodermic needles from the Caldwell & Bloor wholesale Drug company, 34 East Third street, several days ago.

Twirling his cap around his finger and grinning, the youngest member of the group told Judge Anderson he was caught by a member of the Summerville family when he went back to get more trinkets. The boy had a key to the back door of the home in his pocket.

Judge Anderson questioned the boys one at a time yesterday afternoon, and indicated later that he would go further into the case when he returned in two weeks from his vacation. None of the parents were called in yesterday, but the judge said he would confer with them later.

'DAVEY' SINGS ABOUT 'GOLD'

Governor, Poulson Targets For Fun as Newsmen Stage Annual Gridiron Show.

"You can have Poulson, too,
when I'm through,
"When I'm through."

State Democratic Chairman Francis W. Poulson was portrayed counting a roll of currency and singing:

"I'm making lots of money,
"I'm having a damned good time.
"My cash is banked in Canada,
"You can't touch a single dime."

"Hot Mix," the recently publicized black-top material for highways that came under the scrutiny of the senate investigation committee, inspired these lines to the tune of the "Maine Stein Song":

"Raise your steins of oil and grease
"Shout while the grafters mix,
"Let us drink a toast once again
"The streets are paved with golden bricks.
"You have to sell it while it's hot,
"That's what the smart boys learned.
"Go ahead and make a million,
"But never get your fingers burned."

the cards but did not know what was written on them.

Members of the senate committee said they would keep watch to see that the card index file is not removed and that employes who testified concerning the cards "are not punished for having told the truth."

Miss Rainey told the committee that the card index list she made of state employes was compiled in the office of the Davey Air Compressor company at Kent. She said the list was compiled in three weeks, during which she was paid her state salary.

Miss Curtis testified that more than 30,000 cards were kept up to date by Miss Lena Servius and herself.

Cards of employes who were dismissed were put in a "termination drawer," Miss Curtis said. More than 3,000 cards are in this drawer, she added.

Miss Rainey stated that the cards were hauled to and from Kent in a state highway truck.

The fight between Sen. Seidner and Rowland started after Rowland had been ordered to stop talking to Frank E. Walker of Columbus, a witness before the committee. Rowland contended he was counsel for Walker but Walker said he had not retained an attorney.

Rowland left the committee room and sent a message to Walker. Sen. Seidner intercepted it, went outside, and the fight ensued.

Cited For Contempt.

The committee voted to cite Rowland for contempt and to turn over a transcript of the hearing on the matter to the Columbus Bar association and the common pleas court.

The perjury hearing for Lee Bradley, star witness for the committee earlier this week, which was to have been held today in East Cleveland, was postponed indefinitely by a legal move by Bradley's counsel.

Over the objection of attorneys for Gov. Davey who filed the perjury action, Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon set next Wednesday for a hearing on a prejudice affidavit filed by Bradley's counsel against Municipal Judge Stanton Addams of East Cleveland. This stayed the perjury hearing automatically.

Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern Corp., continued his exchange of telegraphic messages with the graft committee today. The committee had asked him whether he had conferred with Gov. Davey personally during the latter's 1934 campaign for governor, and had challenged his statement that there was no U. S. senate investigation of utility firms in 1934.

"I wish to state that to the best of my recollection, I never met Mr. Davey with Mr. Bradley. So far as I recall I only met Mr. Bradley once when he came to my office alone after making an appointment with my secretary as a sales representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.," Willkie wired the committee.

"I repeat that Mr. Bradley's testimony concerning me is entirely false."

Bradley had testified that he obtained verbal introduction to other utility executives with the help of Willkie.

Willkie insisted there was no congressional investigation of utility firms in 1934.

and 4 a. m., when life is at its lowest ebb and seriously sick people usually have their crisis.

Hurries to Sickroom.

The doctor was dismayed that Gen. Pershing had suffered one of his periodical setbacks just before 2 a. m. He hurried back from the meeting with newspapermen at the cottage door and said that unless something unexpected developed, there would be no more reports for a time.

A short time earlier Master Sgt. C. C. Shaeffer, the general's personal aid for 10 years left the group of anxious relatives at the cottage and went to make a telephone call to the war department in Washington. He wanted the general's old uniform sent here at once, so that in event of his death, the general could be clad in it.

At the time the sergeant called Washington, Gen. Pershing had fallen into a deep stupor from which the doctors could not arouse him. Dr. Davison had said that oxygen was being given continuously to "relief air hunger," and that his respiration was very irregular. The sergeant stopped to tell reporters that in case the general died, he would be taken at once to Washington to rest in the Arlington National cemetery.

All day yesterday and the night before, Gen. Pershing had struggled against relapses into coma. At times he seemed nearly conscious although he never rallied enough to talk. Again he would sink into what seemed a deep sleep. He suffered no pain. His affliction was strain on the heart muscles, caused by too rigorous activities in recent years.

Only his doctors entered the sick room. His sister, Miss May Pershing, kept a constant vigil outside the door. Inside, the general lay on the single bed which, in addition to a table and two chairs, were the only furnishings.

The general was showing amazing vitality but in spite of it, and his occasional rallies, Dr. Davison considered his condition extremely critical. In addition to Dr. Davison, who was the general's personal physician, Lieut Col. Shelly U. Marietta, army heart specialist of Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and Dr. Verne Mason, professor of clinical medicine at the University of Southern California, were in attendance, and yesterday Dr. P. Dake Biddle, an eye specialist, was called into the case.

Dr. Davison explained that the purpose of the examination of the general's eyes "is to follow the events in the head through examination of the interior of the eye."

any more help from the state, adding that any new appropriation would either have to impose new taxes or "take the money from one pocket and put it in another.

The state fund which now provides the county's $5,500 monthly allocation is built from diverted sales tax receipts which otherwise would be used for general operating expenses in the county and Mansfield.

Commissioners said there is no possibility of transferring any county funds to the relief fund.

The increasing relief cost, which is seven times as great now as it was last summer, was blamed on the industrial recession in the county.

DISORDERS CHEER BERLIN

Chamberlain's Plan to 'Deal' With Mussolini Draws Fresh Cabinet Outbursts.

(By Associated Press)

Austria, the present test tube for the Hitlerian formula of a new Germanic union in Europe, seethed ominously today but an alert Austrian army capped it before it could bubble over into a Nazi march on Vienna.

Prominent Nazis in Berlin eagerly watched the stirrings at Graz, stronghold of Austrian Nazis, and found in the threatened uprising support for their declaration last week that Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg was "finished".

Troops Stop March.

Swift reinforcement of the Graz garrison, the rumble of 16 tanks, the roar of warplanes and the quick emplacement of artillery and machine-guns, nipped yesterday's plan for a march on Austrian capital.

The Nazis announced a two-day armistice with the Schuschnigg government.

Under today's calm lay sharp danger to the peace of Europe.

Other fuel for Europe's domestic and international fires of discord included:

1. Fresh outbursts in Britain against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's policy of bargaining with Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

Bolstered by a week-end of demonstrations and speeches calling for a general election, opposition members of the House of Commons confronted Chamberlain with new questions, challenging his dream of a British-Italian-French-German accord to assure the peace.

2. French Premier Camille Chautemps' struggle to maintain his government in the face of senate opposition to legislation to ease France's threat of a strike wave that might engulf the nation.

Rejects Compromise.

The Chamber of Deputies Labor committee today rejected a senate compromise clause which would authorize upward adjustment of wages every six months in event living costs rose 10 per cent. The chamber and its committee insisted on five per cent.

HUNT FOR 3 OTHERS

Mitchell Air Field Under Guard As Probers Push Inquiry Of 'Ring.'

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—A red-haired hairdresser of the North German Lloyd liner Europa emerged today as the key figure in the federal government's drive to smash a spy ring accused of furnishing U. S. army information to a foreign power.

G-men resumed their policy of secrecy after announcing the arrest of two soldiers—one a deserter—and Johanna Hofmann, the 26-year-old hairdresser, but it was learned that they were searching for two, and possibly three, more members of the ring.

A federal grand jury will investigate the activities of Miss Hofmann, Erich Glaser, 28, a private stationed at Mitchell field, N. Y., and Guenther Gustave Rumrich, 27, a former sergeant and deserter.

Letters Offered $1,000.

Investigators, engaged in the most intensive spy hunt since the World war, regarded Miss Hofmann as the most important captive. She was arrested when the Europa docked Thursday. She possessed letters offering $1,000 for plans of the navy's new aircraft carriers, Enterprise and Yorktown. She had also a code and the key to it.

There was nothing to indicate that Rumrich and Glaser had known each other, or anything about each other, until Miss Hofmann was arrested. Rumrich implicated her, and it was believed that she implicated Glaser.

A prominent physician was reported to have been questioned, and to have admitted knowing of the ring's activities. Vetterli refused to confirm or deny the reports, but it was learned that his agents sought two or three men who may be higherups in the ring.

Officers at Mitchell Field, the bulwark of New York City's air defense, were said to be most anxious that the inquiry be in-

Mitchell Field Head Son of Mansfielders

Col. Thomas J. Hanley, commanding officer of Mitchell Field, L. I., who ordered a heavy guard stationed around the big U. S. army air base yesterday following the arrest of three accused spies, is the son of Mr and Mrs. T. J. Hanley, 171 West First street.

Although he is a native of Coshocton and never lived in Mansfield, Col. Hanley has visited his parents here frequently. He had planned to come to Mansfield this week but because of the present disturbance, is not expected until later, his father said. Col. Hanley is one of the highest ranking officers in the army air corps.

2 RENAMED TO ELECTION BOARD

Bricker and Williams, Both of Shelby, Get New Terms on County Body.

Fred L. Bricker and George Williams, both of Shelby, were re-appointed to the Richland county board of elections today by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy.

The Richland countians were among 176 board members appointed in the 88 counties in the state to serve until March 1, 1942. A Republican and a Democrat were named in each county.

The re-appointment of both Bricker and Williams was expected since they were endorsed by their respective county executive committees several weeks ago.

Williams, a Republican, has served two four-year terms on the election board and will begin his third term tomorrow. He received the endorsement of the G. O. P. leaders in the county.

Bricker, who begins his second term Tuesday, is a Democrat and

Doughnuts Dunked In Cold Lake as Truck Runs Away

Bakery Vehicle Travels Half Block Without Driver And All But Disappears In Water At North Park.

Dozens of doughnuts, designed for good old-fashioned dunking, received their pre-destined dunking Saturday afternoon, but in the cold waters of North Lake park instead of Sunday morning coffee.

The doughnuts and other baked goods, were in a truck owned by the Park Avenue Bakery, 44 Park avenue west, when the vehicle broke away from the curbing on Helen avenue and proceeded driverless to the lake a half block away.

Only Top Visible.

William Yahraus, the driver, said he had been making a call with some baked goods, and just came out of a house when he saw the vehicle plunge into the lake and settle beneath the surface with only the top visible.

Several other persons saw the truck land in the water too—but didn't know that the machine was driverless. Within a few minutes several fire trucks, an ambulance, a police squad car and a wrecking truck were on hand.

When Yahraus made it clear to Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and police that he was the driver of the truck and that it was a load of baked goods that was in the lake, the officers, firemen and ambulance retired from the scene and the wrecking crew went to work.

The truck was in the garage drying out today, Daniel Schneider, proprietor of the bakery, said the baked goods lost were worth $25.

ASKS FOR DATA

Duffy Calls For Transcript of Committee Testimony.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy today called upon the special senate investigating committee for a complete transcript of testimony adduced at its numerous hearings.

In asking Chairman Ralph Seidner (D) Youngstown, for the testimony, the attorney general did not disclose what use he intends to make of it but it was understood he wanted to look into evidence concerning payments by the state for paving material.

"I assume that recommendations growing out of the hearings which have been held before your committee will not be made until the testimony is finished," Duffy wrote Seidner. "I would greatly appreciate having this testimony at the earliest possible moment."

LOST STRATEGY

Dog's Barking: Trip Through Cold Leads To Man's Arrest.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Clarence Bell decided upon a strategic move when his Sunday morning slumber was broken by the barking of a dog across the alley.

Instead of throwing his bedroom slippers at the dog he put them on, wrapped himself in a bathrobe and brought the animal to his warm room.

The barking stopped, but the dog's owner, Fred Pahlke, soon appeared with Policeman Michael Kerwin and had Bell charged with stealing his pet.

2 CHILDREN DIE

DETROIT — (AP) — Two young girls were burned to death and their sister was severely injured last night when fire swept the second floor flat of the Irvin E. Kraft family.

The dead were Geraldine Kraft, 13, and her sister, Lillian, 5. Another sister, Kathryn, 8, was placed under an oxygen tent in a hospital and not expected to live.

COUNTY CUTS TRAFFIC TOLL 60 PER CENT

Two Dead First Two Months of 1938 as Compared With Five Last Year.

U. S. RECORD BETTER, TOO

8 Ohioans Lose Lives Over Week-End; Loudonville Man Dies of Injuries.

Despite ice-coated, treacherous highways, Richland county escaped without a major traffic accident over the week-end and completed the first two months of 1938 with a traffic toll of two dead as compared with five by March 1 last year, a reduction of 60 per cent.

The county's drop in automobile fatalities so far this year is in line with figures for other sections of the state and nation which have shown a marked decline from the 1937 mark.

The county's two 1938 victims —Joseph H. Uhlich, 70, Mansfield, and A. E. Shafer, 75, Bellville—died when struck by trains. Mr. Uhlich was killed in Mansfield Jan. 7 and Mr. Shafer lost his life Feb. 14 at Bellville.

County authorities attribute the reduced traffic toll to less motor travel and the fact that bad road conditions have caused motorists to drive with more care.

At least eight Ohioans, including a Loudonville man, died in traffic mishaps over the past week-end.

Dies in Kentucky.

The Loudonville victim was John Dana, 45, manager of the bus sales division of the Flexible company, who died of injuries suffered Friday night in an accident at Russellville, Ky.

Dana was fatally hurt when his automobile skidded on an icy road and turned over, fracturing a rib which punctured a lung. Following the accident he obtained another car and drove to Bowling Green where he died Saturday night in a hospital.

His body was returned to the home of his mother in Athens, O., for funeral services and burial. A resident of Loudonville for 10 years, Mr Dana is survived by his wife, Susan, and his mother. He was a World war veteran and a member of the American Legion at Loudonville.

Two persons were killed when an automobile skidded and crashed into a tree along the

PARTING NIP

Mercury Dips to 9; Will March Enter as Lion or Lamb?

February took a parting nip at Mansfield today as its farewell for another year, and the forecast left considerable doubt as to whether March would come in like the traditional lion or the lamb.

The month's lowest temperature was recorded early this morning, when the mercury dropped to 9 above, according to Observer Enos Sprunger. The lowest previous mark, 13 above, occurred on the 21st. Sprunger also reported 3½ inches of snow for Saturday and Sunday.

At noon today, despite a bright sun, the temperature had risen only to 13.

The forecast for tomorrow is "cloudy and warmer," but it would have to get a lot warmer pretty fast to make most Mansfielders consider the entry of March lamb-like.

FALLS UNDER TRAIN

MARION —(INS)— John C. Hamner, 56, a railroad brakeman, was crushed to death when he fell under a moving train in the Erie railroad yards.

Pups Get 'Mother' By Air

SHERBORN, Mass. —(INS)—Five hungry Cocker Spaniel puppies at the home of Mrs. Harriet B. Owen here were thriving today under the care of a foster mother, rushed here from Washington by airplane.

Born six days ago, the puppies were failing because the mother was unable to feed them. So at a cost of $175, Mrs. Owen hired a Boston pilot to fetch a foster mother from a Washington, D. C. kennel.

"Patsy," the substitute mother, took the whole business in stride. She adopted the now contented puppies as though they were her very own.

PERSHING TAKES LIQUID FOOD AS HE SHOWS GAIN

Remains Conscious Longer Periods as He Wages Grim Fight Against Death.

(By Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz.—The first bulletin from the bedside of Gen. John J. Pershing today said he had taken fluids through the mouth for the first time in four days.

His physicians last night had said they would become "really hopeful" of the ultimate recovery of the chief of the armies if he could overcome his inability to swallow.

"Although General Pershing had a very restless night he seemed somewhat better this morning and took fluids by the mouth," said the bulletin given out by Dr. Roland Davison.

"He has been conscious much longer periods. His body temperature has returned to almost normal level and the heart is still competent. No oxygen has been administered for 36 hours."

In reply to questions, Dr Davison said the general's kidneys were "functioning a little now and that helped to relieve the uremic poisoning condition."

'No Funeral Train.'

"Any person other than General Pershing, with his physique, would have been dead three days ago," asserted Dr. Davison, who as the World war commander's private physician.

"He won't be going back on a funeral train at all," said Sgt. C. C. Shaeffer, the general's orderly for 17 years. "He'll get over this. But he'll never be a well man."

It was a week ago today that General Pershing, who had been reported suffering from rheumatism, suffered a relapse and was transferred from his hotel quarters to the sanitorium.

The physicians insisted then there was nothing to be alarmed over except a heart complication they felt would react favorably to treatment.

Thursday night the 77-year-old war chief of the American armies lapsed into a coma.

Failure of his kidneys to function brought on uremic poisoning in "considerable magnitude," the doctors said.

KNOTTED AGAIN

Stan Laurel, Russian Dancer Quiet Talk Of Divorce.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal.—(INS)—Stan Laurel and Illiana, a Russian singer, were starting all over again as man and wife in the hope their new marriage would turn out better than the first.

Yesterday they appeared again before Justice of the Peace Ed Winn in Yuma and asked him to tie the knot all over again.

"This is to end all talk of a separation and divorce," Stan felt called upon to explain.

INQUIRY PUTS JITTERY HOUSE ON 'HOT SPOT'

GOVERNOR TALKS TONIGHT

Puts Final Touches on Radio Speech Replying to 'Graft' Charges of Bradley.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Eighteen leading Democratic representatives discussed with Gov. Martin L. Davey at a private meeting last night the situation created by a state graft-hunting investigation and the imminent adjournment of the legislature, it was learned authoritatively today. Information was that no conclusions were reached at the conference.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The legislature came back to the capital today to make one of the most difficult decisions ever to face an Ohio lawmaking body on the virtual eve of an election campaign.

It must decide whether to extend the session by reconsidering the joint resolution setting today as the date for sine die adjournment and thus incur the wrath of the mighty administration machine, or to string along with Governor Davey and risk retaliation at the polls.

Fund Bill Delayed.

Of greater importance to government activities at present was the supplemental appropriation bill, but it had been shifted into the background as the legislators studied their chances of making a wise selection in the matter of sine die adjournment.

The lawmakers relegated the supplemental budget to the background, saying that the bill would be worked out without difficulty. What they are interested in is the seriousness of the senate investigating committee's charges against the administration, and, indirectly, against the integrity of the lawmakers themselves.

There seemed little doubt as to which way the senate would swing unless the administration brought extreme pressure to bear, but the representatives were "on the spot." The house, heretofore controlled by the governor, was in a state of jitters as rumors continually popped up that resolutions calling for an extension of the session and others calling for impeachment of the governor would be introduced.

More 'Deals' to Come.

James Metzenbaum, tireless counsel for the committee, said he had reams of evidence yet to be presented, and pointed to testimony which he said had proven than the hot mix group had made "deals" with members the night before state highway department lettings which resulted in only one bid on some jobs and identical bids on others.

Meanwhile, the governor put the last touches on a 15-minute statewide radio address tonight

ARMY LIMIT OUT

Nazis Abolish Age Regulation For Military Officers.

BERLIN — (UP) — Germany today abolished the age limit for military service of retired, regular and reserve officers under a decree issued by the supreme command of the armed forces.

As a result of the decree retired officers are liable to military service as long as they fulfill medical requirements regardless of age. The age limit for military service generally has been 45 years.

The new order is applicable to officers who retired from the imperial army and the reichswehr before the Nazis took over control, as well as officers who have gone on the retirement list since that time.

Some such move had been expected since Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, in his speech to the reichstag on Feb. 20, intimated that the German army would be strengthened.

WINS RESPITE

Mass Killer of Five Granted Death Chair Stay.

BELLEFONTE, Pa.—(AP)—Old Martin Sullivan, Duquesne's mass slayer, began a holiday from death today while his attorney sought to have him declared insane.

Scheduled to die a few minutes past midnight this morning in the electric chair for the door-to-door slaying of five neighbors, the former patrolman won a respite until the week of March 21.

Board Off For Newark Seeking Relief Solution

Richland county commissioners and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe planned to go to Newark this afternoon to study the Licking county relief set-up in an attempt to find an answer to Richland county's relief problem.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the relief administration in Licking county had been one of the most thorough and economical in the state and that some of the methods used there may be adopted here.

Faced with a $35,000 debt since Jan. 1 and with little money with which to pay it, Richland officials said immediate action is needed to rescue the county from a "relief crisis."

The county today had received $23,000 from the state in public utility excise tax funds, but almost the entire amount will be used to retire old relief bonds, Auditor Wolfe said.

The county owes some $70,000 for relief administered several years ago and has been retiring the debt with funds allocated by the state.

SINGER IRKED

Martinelli Blames Collapse On Crab Meat He Doesn't Like.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Giovanni Martinelli, the tenor, irked by a light diet imposed by physicians after he was overcome by acute indigestion during a performance at the Metropolitan opera house Saturday, attributed his predicament today to "politeness."

Martinelli blamed his illness on crab meat, a dish he does not ordinarily eat, but which he said he had partaken at a dinner party out of courtesy.

Proposes Condemnation To Get Land For P. O. Addition

The joint treasury-post office committee of the Federal government today recommended condemnation of a piece of property adjoining the Mansfield postoffice to obtain the land for an addition to the postoffice, according to Associated Press dispatches from Washington.

The property involved is the 40-foot strip of land east of the postoffice, on West Fourth street, owned by the Mansfield Mutual Fire Insurance company, which the government seeks as a site for an addition to the present postoffice building to relieve crowded conditions that now exists there.

Postmaster Herman E. Homberger revealed today that about a month ago, he received a proposal form from Washington, which he turned over to the insurance company on which it was to submit the price it wanted for its property. He said he returned the form to Washington after it had been filled out, but said he was not at liberty to disclose the price the company had asked.

J. M. Cook, secretary and treasurer of the insurance company, also declined to make known the amount the company asked, but when informed today of the committee's action, said that was the first information he had received on the transaction since the company's proposal was sent to Washington.

"The offer made to the government was tentative, and therefore I do not care to state what it was," Cook said. "We hope to hear from the government next."

Council Still Split, Decides Fate of Sewage Plan Tomorrow

With city council split into two camps and a third of its membership still "on the fence", fate of Mayor Claude M. Hunter's plan to continue the present operating set-up at the sewage disposal plant hung in the balance today.

The legislation—renewal of the ordinance that expires March 8 creating the sewage plant positions—another authorizing the employment of a technical supervisor and the third calling for a transfer of $1,500 to pay the salary of the technical aid for one year, comes up for final action at a meeting of council tomorrow night.

The measures were given a first and second reading in the last 10 days. Under parliamentary procedure no vote is taken until an ordinance is read a third time.

A poll of council members showed today that three, all Republicans, are standing firm in their belief that an experienced engineer should be hired to operate the plant instead of continuing with an inexperienced operator.

Three other members indicated they would "go along" with the mayor while the remaining three have either declined to commit themselves or could not be reached.

The state health department has recommended the employment of an experienced engineer at the plant. The state has agreed how-

'Graft' Inquiry Puts Jittery House on 'Hot Spot'; Davey to Speak Tonight.

from 7:45 to 8 p. m. in which he will attack Lee Bradley, his contact man, who made many damaging statements concerning alleged contributions he received from automobile manufacturers in return for 50 per cent of the state's motor vehicle business.

Parkinson said he will stay on the job as sergeant-at-arms unless he is removed by a majority vote of the senate.

The committee planned no public hearings today, but instead labored on the report which, it was understood, will recommend several drastic changes in the operation of state departments.

Bradley, key figure of the probe, remained at liberty in $1,000 bail waiting arraignment Wednesday in an East Cleveland municipal court on a charge of perjury pressed by the governor.

Some observers felt that senate leaders would experience some difficulty obtaining the two-thirds necessary to reconsider the resolution. Some representatives felt that should reconsideration fail in the senate, the house would be relieved of responsibility and the spotlight would remain where the trouble started, in the upper house

However, there seemed little likelihood that the house would not come under the public eye in its actions since Rep. Gus Kasch (D), Summit, has said he will ask his colleagues today to reconsider the sine die adjournment resolution.

There was a long chance that the governor would ease the situation and minimize the senate committee's findings by sending a message to the legislature asking that a committee be appointed to study a state purchasing system and report to the next session.

Stops 10-Cent Fee For Liquor Storage.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Payment of a 10-cent handling and storage charge on each case of liquor sold in bailment by the Cincinnati Terminal Warehouse company and the Franklin Warehouse, Inc., was ordered stopped today by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The order is to become effective tomorrow when state contracts with the two warehouses expire.

In a letter to members of the liquor commission Ferguson said:

"We are hereby requesting that your commission and liquor director immediately advertise for bids for a new contract in Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Canton and Toledo, to handle the liquor in bailment stock, if, in your opinion, you are to continue the present system of purchasing liquor from bailment stocks located in the state of Ohio."

In a statement accompanying the letter, Ferguson said:

"The auditor wishes to go on record that he is opposed . . to the bailment houses being operated by the Franklin Warehouse, Inc., whose president is G B Stinchcomb, for the reason that he himself is president of the "Pete Stinchcomb, Inc., which concern is a distributor for certain brands of whisky now purchased by the state of Ohio and is likewise a representative of a number of other distillers"

Under the state liquor monopoly system, liquor is consigned to the state and held in warehouses from which deliveries are made to the commission.

Seen With Package.

As the chronology of operations of the spy ring became clear, it was shown that Rumrich was arrested on Feb. 15 when he accepted from a messenger a package supposedly containing a score of blank passports, which he had asked for in the name of "Mr Weston, undersecretary of state"

Passport bureau officials put police on his trail as soon as they received his obviously suspicious request A dummy package was addressed to him, and detectives followed it through a maze of directions until he was found.

G-men said that Rumrich told them that after deserting the army, he sent a letter to the German "chief of secret service" offering to serve as an espionage agent in the United States. He cited his army service, which included duty in the Panama Canal zone.

Later, investigators said, Rumrich met a man in a Times Square bar who engaged him as an agent at $50 a month. So far as could be learned he never transmitted any information that could not be found in public documents

Rumrich's arrest led to the arrest of Miss Hofmann, a native of Dresden. Questioning, led to the arrest of Glaser, who was believed to have obtained, in some manner as yet unknown, certain information about the army's code concerning air maneuvers Whether this information had been transmitted abroad, was not known.

ever to the appointment of J. R. Turner, recently named by the mayor, providing the city will employ a part-time technical supervisor for a period of one year. Turner had no previous experience in operating a plant.

It is this point which is the center of the controversy in council, the Republican members insisting that a man with previous experience be named.

Leading the opposition to Mayor Hunter's proposal are Councilmen James E. Crum, Russell D Porch and George C. Kyle.

Fifth Ward Councilman Fred Miller, Democrat, who had previously opposed the plan and suggested the hiring of an experienced engineer, declined to commit himself today of how he would vote when the measures come up tomorrow night.

"I don't want to be left out on the limb," Miller said.

Councilman-at Large Harry M Emmons and Sixth Ward Councilman Arthur L. Croak, both Democrats, are the others whose stand in the controversy are not known They could not be reached for a statement.

The three members who favor the proposal and have agreed to "go along" are Councilmen George Berg, president pro-tem, and Lester Hunter, both Democrats and C. N. Shultz, Republican.

COURT UPHOLDS NLRB RULINGS

Tribunal Orders Bus Concerns to Heed Decisions Made on Bargaining Units.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The supreme court failed today to deliver an opinion on litigation involving constitutionality of the 1935 act regulating public utility holding companies. The decision may come next Monday or later.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The supreme court sustained today orders of the National labor Relations board directing two bus companies to withdraw recognition for collective bargaining purposes from labor organizations they were alleged to have formed and dominated Government attorneys studied the decision closely to ascertain its effect upon what the labor board described as "company-dominated" unions.

In an opinion delivered by Justice Stone, the tribunal reversed rulings by federal circuit courts holding that the board orders were not authorized by the National Labor Relations act.

The orders were directed against the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc., and the Pacific Greyhound Lines, Inc.

They contended that when the board acted, no elections had been held to determine whom the employes wished to represent them in collective bargaining and that it was unfair to "discriminate" against the unions of company employes.

These organizations were known as "The Employes Association of the Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines, Inc.," and the "Drivers' Association, Pacific Greyhound Lines."

Justices Cardozo and Reed did not participate in the decision.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1938.

The Bible is being revised again—but not with the idea of making it suit everybody.

With easy divorces and easy marriages, Reno seems determined to get 'em coming and going.

Certainly the United States has a foreign policy. We just don't seem to, because nobody ever knows what it is.

Program-Wrecking.

A CAMPAIGN has been started to have the authors of radio scripts named on the program, as announcers and masters of ceremonies and performers and sponsors are already named. The script writers object to being anonymous in the midst of such a welter of publicity.

It is only just that the authors should have credit for their contribution to an entertaining program, but a listener cannot help feeling that this personal mention fad is going too far. Some radio critics feel so, too. They point out that there are already too many "plugs" interrupting the progress. Comedians mention each other, performers mention their other appearances on stage or screen, advertising is overdone.

In the legitimate theater this sort of thing is confined to the printed program. It would be highly objectionable if recited across the footlights before the play and between acts. Why not work out some arrangement for carrying such information and publicity in radio bulletins issued to all radio owners? As much of it as is genuine news already appears in the radio columns of some newspapers. But if the public is to have artistic radio entertainment, and broadcasters are to have an interested and pleased audience, there will have to be less, not more, "plugging" on the air.

Brobdignagian Reception.

STATISTICS from that incredible political reception given at Washington by Indiana people, to introduce the fellow-Hoosier they are booming for president, make startling reading.

Number of persons attending, 3,141.

Number of rooms reserved at the hotel by Indianans, more than 40 suites.

Size of buffet supper table, 48 feet by 9 feet.

Number of waiters helping serve from buffet table, 26.

Estimate of cost of food on table as it stood when guests arrived, $1,800.

Estimate of entire cost of supper, including replacements, $3,000 to $4,000.

Number of dishes, trays, bowls and other containers of delicacies on buffet table, more than 200.

Table decorated with four silver candelabra and huge floral centerpiece flanked by baskets of other flowers.

Four silver tea and coffee services presided over by sixteen women.

These are not listed, but it is easy to imagine the fleets of cars used to bring the guests, the clothes worn by the 3,141 persons, etc., etc.

Maybe what this country needs to get itself out of the recession is more and better political receptions. One commentator, perhaps an uncharitable one, called the McNutt affair typically American—"feeding everyone who didn't need to be fed."

A Chance to See.

SOME folks and some institutions go on, day after day and year after year, doing their job quietly and unostentatiously, yet efficiently.

You don't hear a lot of fuss being made about what the Y. M. C. A. is doing, yet if you'd stop in there some afternoon or evening you'd see a lot of happy, interested young boys, engaged in activities of real merit.

Most of us probably have only a vague idea of what goes on there.

Well, Visitor's Month opens there tomorrow, and the Y. has arranged a program to show exactly what goes on. It wouldn't be a bad idea to stop and see. Unostentatious activities sometimes have a way of turning out to be quite impressive.

Correcting the Inch.

DR. LYMAN J. BRIGGS, director of the bureau of standards, takes his job seriously. He is worried about the American inch. In the United States an inch is 25.40005 millimeters long. In Great Britain it is only 25.39996 millimeters. To an ordinary person this difference seems trivial. But Dr. Briggs says it is "intolerable," and he hopes to have it partially corrected by congressional act.

The house committee on coinage, weights and measures has responded to his troubled appeal by reporting a bill which would fix the length of the American inch exactly at 25.4 millimeters. The change won't inconvenience industry a particle, says Director Briggs, because nobody can tell the difference—none of its measurements even approach such fineness. This leaves the mathematically innocent layman wondering what's so "intolerable" about a fraction that nobody uses.

Guard Against Pneumonia.

PNEUMONIA is a disease which continues high on the list of public health menaces.

The so-called "common cold" has a tendency to develop into pneumonia unless given prompt and proper attention.

Application of a few simple rules will aid greatly in preventing spread of pneumonia. Here are a few suggestions:

Don't sneeze or cough in public unless you cover your nose or mouth with a handkerchief.

If you feel a cold coming on, consult a doctor and follow his orders.

Don't take needless chances; get plenty of rest and fresh air.

Don't wait until you get a cold before you act. Keep in proper condition so that you may resist the germs that cause colds which may turn into pneumonia.

Some of the little countries in Central Europe are now talking of a protective league. They could call it a League of Consternations.

What Would Mitchell Say About Bigger Navy?

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — A year ago died a man who would have made for himself a Roman holiday of this naval building program. The name is William Mitchell, one-time chief of the army air corps. Not a public peep is heard out of the army these days, however, as the navy bids for a billion dollar building program—and probably will get it.

But the arguments against building naval monsters which were advanced by General Mitchell are whispered about among army men—particularly in the air corps.

The argument that a fast squadron of air bombers, on the loose, would drive the whole United States navy into the comparative safety of San Francisco bay still is advanced by the air-fighters. But officers who value their official necks do not stick them out. Mitchell did not value his official neck, stuck it out, and had it lopped off by a court martial.

ARGUE NAVY IS CHEAPER

ONE air corps officer, whose name cannot be used, says of the present situation:

"We will have to wait for the present generation of admirals and generals to die. Admiral Leahy is the first chief of operations even to admit an air bomb can sink a battleship."

But the argument is not all on one side in private. In public it is all on the side of the battleship. That prevails not only in this country but in other countries which are trying to keep their military establishments in tip-top shape for the war they say they are not expecting but fear may come.

The navy maintains it actually is cheaper for a nation to depend for its main striking power on costly battleships than on airplanes. As an example, a navy department memorandum draws a comparison between bombardment by battleships and air bombers.

A battleship can pour out a round a minute from each of its nine major guns. A 16-inch projectile weighs 2,100 pounds, about the same as the 2,000-pound bomb which a large size bomber can carry. In a hundred minutes a battleship could throw out nine hundred 2,100-pound shells. Fifteen such battleships could sling out 13,500, a feat which, the memo said, would require 13,500 planes, since each carry only one ton-weight bomb. There aren't that many bombers in the world.

Then, says the navy memo, the life of a battleship is 26 years, while a plane lasts about 6 years, so over a period of six years it would take 58,500 planes at a cost of $14,600,000,000 to provide the same striking power contained in 15 battleships costing $1,500,000,000.

ANOTHER PHASE

THAT only begins the argument, of course. A squadron of $250,000 bombers could fly a thousand miles, bomb the enemy and return almost before a battleship could steam up and clear the harbor.

But, say the admirals testifying before the House naval committee, one air bomb won't sink a battleship any more than one shell will sink it. They take a lot of punishment. Their six-inch deck armor, it is argued, will keep present air bombs out of the belly of the ship. If they burst on deck they don't hurt much—truly they don't.

Some members of congress are talking of inviting army men to testify as to their views on whether the navy should be built up so much faster than the army and air corps. But they haven't found a William Mitchell yet.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

HEADLINES say that democracies have bowed to fascism. But the belief is gaining in world financial centers—the chief nerve centers of our modern life—that democracies and fascism are bowing to peace.

Neither the democracies nor the autarchic nations desire war.

And the people certainly do not.

CHIEF QUESTION

The chief question is whether "peaceful penetration" will succeed. If Great Britain and France join hands with Germany and Italy, will the democratic views stem the tide of fascism—or will fascism continue to penetrate into democracy?

A people relieved of strain thinks more rationally. That may prove the undoing of fascism and the dictators.

But a complete overturn of fascism cannot occur until the injustices which bred the monster have been wiped out.

The British Tories evidently believe they can be wiped out through free intercourse.

Once a dictator can no longer point to those injustices as a rallying cry, there will be no dictator.

A WEAKNESS

Fascism would be on more permanent ground if it had not reverted to the age-old nationalistic trick of blaming races and creeds.

There comes a day in each era when such devices are seen as a trick—and the house of cards falls.

Basically, however, it must be remembered that Italy, Austria, Germany have had very real complaints. When the democracies failed to heed, those countries fell into the hands of brutal rulers.

IN ITALY

An Italian friend of mine tells of a fellow-native who just has returned from a visit to Italy.

Said the returned visitor: "I no longer could live there. It is a land of suppression. Even the waiter at one's table fears to answer a question. People speak in whispers—when no one is looking."

We had thought such suppression was reserved for Hitler-land. But it exists wherever there is a dictator of any kind—Germany, Italy, Austria, Poland, Rumania, Portugal, the Soviet Union, Japan, Brazil—the list is a long one.

It is an unnatural state. The masses of people in those countries are like suppressed volcanoes. But the steam will come out some time—perhaps in a terrific upheaval.

For the moment, however, Britain has sought to relieve the pressure by a very business-like gesture. And it meets the approval of the financial world throughout the globe.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To "Make One's Mark."

Making one's mark was not always the result of that highly uncertain modern recipe of so-called "success" ingredients.

Formerly, it was simply literally making a mark, sign or symbol.

The expression, now figurative, is a carry-over with an altogether different meaning, from the Middle Ages, when its significance was quite literal, when it was a rare individual who could actually sign his name.

Even with persons in high places, it was not unusual, when they had to affix their cognomen, to simply make their mark—a survival of which is the cross appended to a document to-day in lieu of a signature, by illiterates.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

It Is Never Too Late.

"See what I've done with life," she said.
She was disconsolate.
This thing and that had interfered,
And she held it was "fate."

"And now?" I asked her when the storm
Of tears was spent. "Too late,"
She answered, "I am old and now,
Of course, must bow to fate."

I counseled her, "It never is Too late, and youth or age
Has nothing much to do with it;
Turn to a new, clean page.

And start again. Forget the past.
That was ten years ago:
Today she said of her success,
"To you, it all, I owe."

Young America Says---

Young Married Couples Shouldn't Live With Their Parents.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"TWO FAMILIES UNDER ONE ROOF—" There's a subject which is always good for a roof-raisin' rumpus . . . and a flood of sympathy for the younger couple.

But how about the Old Folk . . . just what sort of a break do Gramp and Gramma get? George T. Powell, jr., of Macon, Georgia, is asking — in a grand letter which should make many a selfish young couple Stop, Look and Listen.

"Dear Elsie—

"I am absolutely against married couples living with their parents, unless it is a matter of family necessity, and even then it is a dangerous experiment, for it encourages selfishness and weakness in the Newlyweds.

"Why should old folk who have reared a family be worried with a bride and groom? Why should Grandma and Grandpa have to train their grandchildren? Why should they have to prepare lunch for Junior when he comes in from school, or see that Johnnie doesn't go out without his sweater, or that Susie eats her spinach? It's all wrong. It puts the home responsibility on the old folks who ought, in common decency, to be 'taking things easy' instead of having to work harder.

"If the young couple both work, then poor Father and Mother must answer the door, receive all the telephone calls, send out the laundry, take in the dry cleaning, buy and haul home and cook the groceries, and see that the home machinery runs smoothly at all times. And, if either son or daughter gets sick, poor Father and Mother must call the doctor and wait upon the patient. These are the very things young married folks need to do for themselves.

"Home-making cannot be learned overnight. It is only learned by the painful and personal repetition of daily humdrum tasks and sacrifices. Living with, or on, the home folks MAY save the young folks money, but it won't teach them independence; it will make them SOFT and incapable of planning for their best interests.

"Newlyweds should learn from the birds—get out and fly on their own when they're ready."

What a grand son-in-law you'll make, George, if you live up to your ideas!

HERE'S another domestic problem which has been starting a string of battles: SHOULD A BRIDE PUT ALL HER SAVINGS INTO THE NEW HOME WHEN SHE WEDS...AND GIVE HER NEW HUSBAND ABSOLUTE FAITH?

"YES!" says young Mrs. Elizabeth Mavis of Clintonville, Wis.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I believe every bride should give all her savings toward the new home. It establishes marriages on the right foundation of faith and understanding. The wife who has worked and saved money knows what a man's work means to him, and they have much more in common. Teamwork is the basis of success in marriage — teamwork both in savings and faith.

"Tangible things acquired together cement love. If, after contributing her savings, the wife still feels she would like to save money for emergencies, I suggest saving a little out of her allowance each week. A small amount put aside adds up fast. Show me the man who is not happy to find that his wife has salted away a little for the rainy day or some unexpected mishap!"

Mrs. Elizabeth Mavis—age 27
Clintonville, Wis.
($10 prize winner)

She's 100 per cent correct, says I. But Ethel Steles of New Auburn, Wis., doesn't agree with me. Do you think she is right? And am I just a sentimental old valentine?

"DON'T GIVE UP EVERYTHING....DON'T BELIEVE EVERYTHING," says Ethel. "KEEP AN ACE UP YOUR SLEEVE.... AND YOUR TONGUE IN YOUR CHEEK!" What do YOU think of that as a policy for Newly Weds? Privately I don't think much—yet Ethel sounds like a Regular Pal in spite of her warped viewpoint.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"I don't believe a girl should put all her savings into a home. There's a transition time in marriage—for a girl—between her former financial independence and her new dependence on her husband. If she has a little money of her own to lean on, it will bridge that time.

"Besides—men are not saints. No woman can know what a man really is before marriage. How does she know he will play fair? Faith is fine, but one must make sure that both parties are capable of it. 'Better be sure than sorry'...there are enough divorces... why not do one's best to ward another one off? After a fair trial, any normal girl should be willing to give everything.

"IF A MAN CAN'T AFFORD MARRIAGE LET HIM WAIT UNTIL HE CAN. Also, there are plenty of times, later on, when the bride's savings may be more needed than at first."

Health Advice

Longer Life Span Now Possible.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

Man has always been in search of eternal youth. There are many legends and historical documents referring to this quest. Every school child is familiar with the story of Ponce de Leon who spent his energies searching for the spring of everlasting life. He discovered Florida but was killed by the Indians before he achieved his heart's desire. Countless others have failed in efforts to find perpetual youth.

During the last two decades medical science has shown the way, not to the mythical "fountain of youth," but to longer life. Science has always concerned itself with the lengthening of life by combatting disease. An amazing measure of success has resulted from these efforts. That this is true is shown by the increase in the expectation of life and by the marked decrease in the number of sufferers from many diseases.

The surest guarantee of a long life is the possession of a strong and sturdy body. To have a strong and sturdy body it is necessary to respect it and protect it from unnecessary stress and strain.

Correct Defects.

Not all of us are born with strong bodies. Many are weakened by various defects and weaknesses. Whenever possible, these must be corrected.

Proper eating of food rich in certain substances, which are essential for the normal growth and development of the body, is another important factor in preserving youth. But diet alone is not sufficient to ward off disease.

The greatest danger to health and long life is found in the neglect of certain ailments. As a rule these are at first trivial in their nature. Continued neglect leads to real damage to the body. To maintain youth and youthful energy everyone of us must guard against the physical pitfalls of disease.

Periodic visits to the doctor are recommended as a means of warding off disease or attacking it early when there is hope of removing it.

Although the quest for the fountain of youth cannot be considered as ended, we are well on the way. It is now known that medical science can definitely eliminate many of the stumbling blocks to health, happiness and long life.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

No Rich Relatives, Thank Goodness.

I'M GLAD I have no rich relatives. . . . Life's difficult enough without having that situation to contend with.

If I had rich relatives, they'd be a great problem to me. . . . Suppose they didn't have any children. Suppose I was their nearest relative. Suppose they were getting along in years, and pompous, and cantankerous, and arrogant, and the sort of spoilsports nobody could like. And suppose they kept suggesting that I, their great grandnephew, would be their heir if I was a nice boy and behaved myself.

Wouldn't that be a fine basket of fish? If I had rich relatives like those cranky old toughies, what a life I'd live, and how I'd despise myself. It would be a very severe test of my philosophy. . . . After all, think of all that money. Think of my children, think of the advantages it would give them. Think of how nice it would be to have a backlog like their money. . . . And after all, too, is there any reason why I shouldn't be kind to a couple of unhappy people merely because they are so unfortunate as to have more money than they know what to do with?

I'm afraid their money would be a very bad influence on my character, a very sad influence indeed, branding me indelibly. I've seen it work out that way with others. I have no reason to believe it would work any differently for me.

But suppose they were rich relatives from whom there wasn't the slightest chance of inheriting anything, ever? What then? Well, I wouldn't like that, either. . . . If they were the generous kind, I'd hate their giving me things. If they were the snooty kind, as they'd probably be, I'd resent their snippiness. I'd carry a bigger chip on my shoulder than any they carry. I'd hate myself for being so nasty; I'd hate them for upsetting me so. I'm absolutely sure I wouldn't get along with them, whatever they were like.

So I'm glad I need make no choice. I haven't any rich relatives. They don't need to think about me. I don't need to bother about them. It's all settled. I can pick my friends for myself. I needn't be a hypocrite. I needn't carry a chip on my shoulder. I needn't be sweet to them. I needn't be sour. I can do as I please. And so can they. . . . They don't exist.

McIntyre's New York Glimpses

—By O. O. McINTYRE

IN THE MANNER of Arnold Bennett's journal: Dr. Frank Crane was able to get more stuff ahead than any syndicate writer I know. His daily essays were cheerful philosophy. He loved to write them. Shortly before he died he showed me enough material in his California workshop to last nine years.

So many top-drawer night clubs with hideous names: the Waldorf's Sert Room and the Iridium at the St. Regis. How thoughtful humanity at times. George T. Fox was once a property boy in Massachusetts where Eva Tanguay used to play and whom he adored.

Today he is the owner of a mineral bath resort at Guthrie, Okla. He read of Miss Tanguay's invalidism from arthritis in this column. So he telegraphed her to be his guest and all he asks in payment is that when she departs she will leave her crutches as souvenirs.

In the past 25 years Roy Howard has traveled a half million miles and the place he likes best is Honolulu. The only other person I know to travel so extensively was the late Carl Seitz, whose first choice was Shanghai in its better days. My choice for the down coast is Delft in Holland.

I wish I could print Gene Fowler's impious version of Dr. Ned Gimp's address before a medical society at Seacaucus, N. J. In a life of generous laughing nothing convulsed so thoroughly. It's a throw-back to those choice Rabalaisian essays Mark Twain circulated among intimates. I never see Bide Dudley I do not think of his outrageous lap dog Boo when Dudley and I bivouacked at an uptown hotel and everywhere Dudley went the pooch, beribboned in pink, followed, mistaking Bide, I suspect, for a bone.

The Big Appling conuiptions continue to leave me cold. As I have beheld them at La Conga and other rhumba rendezvous it's a dance almost solely for exhibitionists. If dancers seek natural exaltation nothing excels gliding out on the floor with the graceful partner to the strains of an inspiring waltz. And what waltz tops "The Blue Danube?" Odd hazards in the literary upclimb. Theodore Dreiser, during a jobless interlude, became editor of the Diamond Dick 5-cent novels. And H. G. Wells swabbed bottles in a pub. What a specimen Dreiser is for students of moods. Sometimes flailing and shouting in apoplectic rage, and then meek, shy and with not a single word. Just quietly rocking.

More and more debutantes turn from the social buzz. I notice Albert Keller's daughter Claire is a sales woman in a pert dress salon. The staffs of Harper's Bazaar and Vogue are packed with youngish blue bloods. Frank Craven is my idea of a natural actor. He needs neither makeup nor costume. "Our Town," his latest play, is a keen etching of village life with Craven's son in a leading role. Ed Wynn's son Keenan is cast in the Lillian Gish show. When Justice Cardozo was a nipper in brass-toed boots his tutor was Horatio Alger of the up-from-sidewalk tales.

All of a sudden the established wing collar for a gentleman's dinner jacket has become completely passe. In its stead is the medium high turn-over and thus the ashman receives an avalanche of outmoded neckwear. A stylist tells me Jack Bauchanan popping over from England with the low down in collars for evening resulted in the sudden switch. One collar, shirt and tie blend seen often lately, however, gets my vote: The ash gray shirt with collar to match and a deep purple four in hand. It was first offered, I hear, by Carey Grant at one of the afternoon functions. A flash of long ago: Tossing the first conversational ball after the visiting presiding elder had murmured grace by brightly remarking: "Oh Grandma we've got the butter knife on, haven't we?"

Success story: When Burton Holmes was in his early 20's he heard the then famous Stoddard deliver a travel lecture and right there decided to be one. He went to the most famous bureau head of the day and sought advice. After a talk, Holmes was told: "Young man, forget it. You have neither voice nor personality." But Holmes was not dismayed. Instead he began to take voice lessons and study the psychology of personality. Then he sprouted a professorial Van Dyke, slung a camera across his shoulder and fared forth for pictorial adventures. The result is history.

Kitchen Hints

Remember only crisp crackers or wafers should be served with soups, salads or cheese. Often crackers in a fresh box need reheating for five minutes in moderate oven.

To remove those white water stains from your hardwood floors first rinse the spotted area with cold water. Then rub it well with a cloth dipped in two cups of clear water in which two tablespoonsful of spirits of camphor have been placed Next, wipe the area dry and apply floor polish.

To strain orange juice relieves it of considerable vitamin content contained in the pulp

Beans baked for eight hours at a temperature of 275-250 degrees in a modern gas range are tender, mealy and digestible.

To keep rice flaky during cooking do not stir or cook it in quantities of boiling water. After it has been boiled the rice should be drained, rinsed in hot water and "dried off" for five minutes in a moderate oven It may then be served as a vegetable, a dessert or combined with other foods.

To improve the flavor of carrots, turnips, cabbage onions and peas add a fourth of a tablespoon of sugar for each three cups of water used in cooking.

If you want a gelatin mixture to congeal quickly pour it into a wide shallow metal mold in preference to a deep mold of earthenware or china

Glazed pineapple quarters are an excellent garnish for the scrambled egg and sausage platter to be served after the movies or the snowball party

To stick two types of cookies together in preparing a party food spread the lower one with slightly beaten egg white. Add the upper cooky and put the two in the oven and bake.

Thin strips of dried herring makes a tasty addition to the canape tray The salty flavor blends nicely with cocktails

Hang 'Em Up

Broom holders, small hooks and screws help to keep the household cleaning equipment in good working order. Hang up brooms, mops, dusters and cleaning brushes by attaching screws to the handles

Cooky Time-Saver

Spread or roll out soft cooky dough and put it on greased baking sheets or large, shallow pans. Cut into square or bar-shaped cookies as soon as the pans or sheets are removed from the oven

Camouflage

Top spinach with grated cheese and bake it until the cheese has melted. Spinach haters are quite likely to succumb to the lure of the cheese sauce

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated—due to lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat It means the kind of food that forms a soft, bulky mass in the bowels. It's this mass that helps your bowels move.

The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-tonic, vitamin B₁. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

MISS MARYALICE KYLE BRIDE OF A. J. STUTZ

Wears Grandmother's Wedding Gown For Ceremony At Noon At First Congregational Church; Couple Will Make Home In Mansfield.

WEARING her grandmother's wedding gown of cream colored cashmere, Miss Maryalice Kyle approached the altar of the First Congregational church on the arm of her father, George C. Kyle, at noon yesterday. Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the church, read the ceremony which united her in marriage with A. J. Stutz.

Miss Kyle's gown, which was trimmed with corded silk and net, had a long sweeping train. With it she wore a plain net cap veil falling to the shoulders. The gown was worn by Mrs. E. W. Kyle, the bride's grandmother, for her own wedding.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of sonvenir roses, gardenias, adiantium and white orchids. The orchids were a separate corsage which Mrs. Stutz later wore when she departed on the wedding trip. Her only jewelry was a diamond studded baguette style watch.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Chester McVicar who wore a coral organza gown trimmed with black velvet ribbon. She wore gladiolus and acizia in her hair and carried a semi-colonial bouquet of Talisman roses, gladiolus tips and adiantium.

The bride's sister, Miss Georgeann Kyle, was the only bridesmaid. She wore her mother's gown which was made of embroidered batiste. Mrs. Kyle was married in this gown in 1910. Miss Kyle's bouquet was made in colonial style of sweet peas, acizia, Briar Cliffe roses and cineraria and tied with long ribbon streamers. In her hair she wore cyclamen blossoms.

For the ceremony Mrs. Kyle wore a black lace gown and a corsage of white gardenias. Mr. McVicar was best man for Mr. Stutz.

The altar of the church was banked with palms and decorated with pink and white carnations arranged in large baskets. The lighting was achieved with two seven-branch candelabra holding white tapers. Preceding the ceremony Miss Louise Krause played "I Love You Truly" and "Stardust." The Wagner "Lohengrin" wedding march was played for the processional and during the ceremony the organist played "Oh Perfect Love." The bridal party left the church to the strains of the traditional Mendelssohn march.

A wedding dinner was served the party at the Mansfield-Leland hotel following the ceremony. The table was decorated with a floral centerpiece and a wedding cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Stutz will be at home at the Gardner apartments following a wedding trip.

Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. McVicar were host and hostess to the couple and members of the wedding party for a rehearsal dinner. The affair was given at the Towne House. Mr. and Mrs. Stutz presented the attendants with gifts and they received an electrical gift from Mr. and Mrs. McVicar.

Muscular Rheumatic Pains
It takes more than "just a salve" to draw them out. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old Musterole—soothing, warming, penetrating and helpful in drawing out the local congestion and pain when rubbed on the aching spots.
Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness generally yield promptly.
Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster, Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.
